Row erupts over college campus bid

By Chris Britcher

chris.britcher@archant.co.uk

COLLEGE chiefs have hit back at objections lodged by an historic society over plans for a multi-million pound campus on Elwick Road.

K College is looking at creating a modern campus in the centre of the town by transforming the currently disused properties it owns and have it ready and open for business by 2013.

It is currently staging a series of consultations on the proposals, and is hoping to win planning consent to push ahead with the £20 million plan.

Running in parallel with an application for the new campus is a bid to sell the main Jemmett Road site off for housing to fund the scheme.

But the Victorian Society has criticised the plans – saying proposals to demolish Swanton House and Kent Care House, collectively known as Swanton Villas and sat within a conservation area, should be scrapped.

Heloise Brown, conservation advisor for the charity, said: “Ashford needs to preserve the heritage it has left. The Swanton Villas are in need of repair but it would be hugely wasteful to demolish them when they could be adapted and reused as part of the wider college site.”

“New development does not need to be at odds with heritage; the two can be combined to produce a far more sensitive and subtle effect.”

But K College – formed following the merger of South Kent and West Kent colleges – says the plans proposed are the only option.

Principal Bill Fearon said: ‘While the work of the Victorian Society is of great importance in saving historic buildings, it does not automatically follow that because a building is old then it is of architectural value.

“The building on Elwick Road, owned by the college, is not listed, and isn’t suitable for educational purposes. If it had been, the former South Kent College would not have moved out and rented buildings elsewhere in the town.

“People who use wheelchairs, for example, are confined only to the ground floor. Already the first part of our new building in Tonbridge has won an architectural award from the Tonbridge Civic Society, and it has excellent facilities for people with disabilities.

“The proposed campus will place the same emphasis on quality and access for all. It would be a real asset to Ashford town centre, and we very much hope people will support our ambitions for further and higher education there.”

SOCIAL CARE

So who was to blame for slump in child services?

By Steve Knight

steve.knight@kosmedia.co.uk

SENIOR staff at Kent County Council have been accused of allowing social workers to take the blame for failings in the child protection service.

At a meeting of the authority's cabinet scrutiny committee last Wednesday, Lib Dem leader Cllr Trudy Dean questioned why no senior managers had been held responsible for the multitude of problems that led to a disastrous Ofsted inspection at the end of last year.

But after being told the council was looking forward and not back, Cllr Dean admitted that it may never be revealed who was to blame for the collapse of the department.

She said: "I think it's what members of the public expect and what social workers expect. They feel like they're being asked to carry the can on this when all evidence shows they were working well beyond their hours, were understaffed, not being managed properly and with an inadequate IT system."

"I think they have a right to know what was happening at a higher level."

KCC is rebuilding its child protection service after last year's Ofsted inspection revealed vulnerable youngsters were at risk of harm, due to severe failings in several key areas of the department.

The scrutiny committee heard how the authority was making "huge strides" in dealing with a backlog of children without an allocated social worker, reducing the number from 2,200 last February to just 71 this week.

But Cllr Dean said she wanted to know who was to blame for the problems in the first place.

She asked at the meeting: "Who was responsible for misreporting that everything in the garden was rosy when it was not? Paul Carter [KCC leader] said there would be a 'post-mortem' but we are still waiting."

But Cllr Dean cut a lonely figure as other councillors, including cabinet member for specialist children's services Cllr Jenny Whittle, told her it was time to put the past behind them.

Former cabinet member for children Cllr Chris Wells said the recent case of Sharon Shoesmith should act as a warning to those who seek to blame others.

Ms Shoesmith, the former director of children's services at Haringey council, was fired without warning and on live television at the height of the Baby P scandal. Judges in the Court of Appeal have now ruled that she was unlawfully dismissed and "summarily scapegoated".

Cllr Wells said: "Social services are always judged by failure and public inquiries, and it's time we put the blame culture behind us."

"Very few people understand what goes on at the frontline and there's a real danger here of turning this into something that would look better on the front page of a tabloid newspaper.

"We are seeing changes and positive contributions in turning the service around now, and in a month that has seen the Ed Balls/Sharon Shoesmith court case verdict, we ought to think twice before we start flogging people to blame."

Among those people invited to attend the meeting was former KCC chief executive Peter Gilroy, who retired several months before the damning Ofsted inspection and was replaced by current group managing director Katherine Kerswell.

Mr Gilroy emailed Cllr Dean the evening before to decline the invitation, saying he felt it would be "totally inappropriate" to comment on issues at a council he had not been a part of for more than a year.

He added: "It is important to restate that my investigations did not find any evidence of children at risk of serious harm not being assessed within appropriate timescales, nor did I find evidence that case-stacking was occurring."

"This was also true of the two Ofsted reports in 2008."

Cllr Dean said afterwards she was disappointed Mr Gilroy turned down the opportunity to speak at the meeting.

"These problems didn't happen overnight and that's the bottom line," she said. "I'm disappointed he did not see this as an opportunity to tell his side of the story."

Blow as broadband bid disconnected

AN INTERNET revolution could still be on the cards in Kent despite the county council missing out on an ambitious £43 million government funding bid.

Kent County Council wants to upgrade its broadband network over the next four years and had presented a business case to the team in charge of the £530m Broadband Delivery UK (BDUK) budget.

However, in another snub to the South East, the Government overlooked the bid and instead awarded £30m to Devon and Somerset, £15m to Norfolk and £4m to Wiltshire.

Cllr Kevin Lynes, cabinet member for regeneration and enterprise, said: "The bold bid presented by Kent and Medway would have made an important and, in places, life-changing impact."

"While I am, of course, disappointed that the bid was not successful at this stage, the good news is that BDUK has said it wants to meet with each bidder."

"This way, we can look at how our bid goes forward from here and how funding can be secured for the future."

"The door is very much still open."

Currently about seven per cent of Kent households have no access to broadband services of any kind, while 40 per cent are unable to achieve fixed-line transfer rates of two megabits per second.

OFF LINE: Our rural areas have missed out on a vital broadband connection boost could be penalised for being a part of one of the country's largest LEPs.

The county was further hit by news that land and property currently owned by Seeda will now be sold off to the highest bidder rather than passed into local authority control, sparking fears that important regeneration projects could be further delayed.

But culture secretary Jeremy Hunt said of the funding: "Rather than run any more competitions for projects, I intend, by July, to announce the allocation for every English local authority."

Meanwhile, the Kent branch of rural watchdog the Country Land and Business Association (CLA) has urged KCC to focus on the broadband 'not-spots' first when the council does eventually receive funding.

Chairman Judith Norris said the authority risked widening the urban-rural broadband divide if it did not.

She added: "Until we see rural areas universally provided with acceptable broadband, the CLA will continue to argue its 'Final Third First' policy, which promotes the provision of a decent broadband connection for rural areas with slow connections before money is spent improving the speed for those whose broadband is already at an acceptable level."

RURAL CRIME

Farmers hiring security to crack down on crime

By Chris Britcher

chris.britcher@archant.co.uk

DESPERATE farmers are turning to private security firms in a bid to bring to a halt a rural crime spree which is threatening their livelihoods.

A spate of thefts from farms over the last year has cost hard-pushed rural businesses thousands of pounds.

Now many are calling on private firms to boost up security.

Rural areas around Ashford are among the worst hit, along with sites near Canterbury, Maidstone and west Kent.

Now farmers are clubbing together to pay private firms to provide extra security measures.

One of the firms hired is Precreate Security. It is providing 24-hour mobile patrols in a bid to provide peace of mind to farmers concerned they will fall victim again.

Gary Jackson of Precreate said: "Farms have become targets for organised crime gangs. Expensive tractors and machinery are getting stolen and shipped off to Eastern Europe."

"The added problem for farmers is that their land is generally spread out over large areas making it difficult to protect all their property.

"A few of the farmers in the area have joined together in recent weeks to provide a security presence for all their farms and we have installed sensors to alert us of intruders, alarms and mobile response units.

"It means we can be on site within minutes of an alarm being triggered or from a call out from one of our clients."

Police sources have said machinery theft has been linked to organised crime and police have recovered equipment from the county's farms as far away as Poland.

Gangs target what is seen as a lucrative source of cash or they use the stolen machinery in other crimes such as breaking into cash machines.

Heavy machinery includes excavators, forklift trucks, grass cutters, tractors, generators, cement mixers and road breakers. A single piece of equipment can cost up to £300,000.

NFU Mutual – the financial services arm of the National Farmers' Union – has reported a 5.5 per cent increase in tractor thefts in the past year and 15 per cent increase in thefts from homes in rural areas.

A spokeswoman for the NFU said: "We can understand why people would consider taking this action. But the police do run schemes which are designed at clamping down on these problems."

'I thought I was going to die, so I thought I'd kill as many as I could'

A GURKHA who single-handedly fought off an attack by Taliban insurgents has been presented with the UK's second highest bravery medal by the Queen.

Corporal Dipprasad Pun, 31, said he was "very proud" after receiving the Conspicuous Gallantry Cross, which ranks behind only the Victoria Cross, at a ceremony at Buckingham Palace.

The Gurkha, who lives in Ashford, was on duty in Helmand province last September when he saw at least a dozen insurgents planting a bomb at his compound's gates before they opened fire on him.

Stationed on the roof, he gallantly fought off the attack, firing more than 400 rounds, launching 17 grenades and detonating a mine, saving the lives of his three comrades.

When he ran out of bullets, he used his machine gun tripod to beat away his attackers before back-up arrived.

After the ceremony, Cpl Pun said: "I was sentry at night on the checkpoint and suddenly I noticed there were many Taliban surrounding the checkpoint in position to attack.

"I opened fire on them and we fired at each other. There were many, I was alone."

At one point during the exchange, his

weapon failed so he used the tripod to knock one of his attackers off the roof of the compound.

He added: "I had so many around me I thought I was definitely going to die so I thought I'd kill as many of them as I could before they killed me."

"That incident happened in the middle of my tour and after that I thought nobody could kill us now – when we met the enemy, I wasn't scared."

"I thought the Taliban did not have the capacity to fight with us."

The Gurkha, who was an acting sergeant with the 1st Battalion the Royal Gurkha Rifles, came under fire from rocket-propelled grenade and AK-47s for more than 15 minutes during the attack.

The soldier, who is married, is originally from Bima in western Nepal and followed in his father's and grandfather's footsteps by becoming a Gurkha.

His medal citation said he saved the lives of three comrades at the checkpoint and prevented the position becoming overrun.

It read: "Pun could never know how many enemies were attempting to overcome his position, but he sought them out from all angles despite the danger, consistently moving towards them to reach the best position of attack."

Sea monster ready to drift into Triennial arts festival

THIS striking creature will be on display in Folkestone later this month as part of a host of attractions for the town's Triennial arts festival.

Opening on June 25, and running for three months, the event is set to attract worldwide attention.

Entitled A Million Miles from Home, it features the work of 19 international artists – among them Charles Avery and his 20-foot long sea monster. It will rest on the floor of a large room in Folkestone Library.

Behind the Triennial event is Andrea Schlieker, who said it is one of the most ambitious public art projects ever to be presented in the UK.

Stop cash drain on asylum children

By Steve Knight

steve.knight@archant.co.uk

FAILED asylum-seeking children must be dealt with more quickly to limit the amount of money spent by Kent taxpayers on their care.

That is the message from the county council's cabinet member for specialist children's services, Cllr Jenny Whittle, regarding arrangements which require the authority to pay for over-18s until they are removed from the country.

Last year, KCC had a £2.7m shortfall in funding from the UK Border Agency (UKBA) for unaccompanied asylum-seekers, with the need to support care-leavers a cause of a large proportion of these costs.

Cllr Whittle said: "It's a real burden for us to support young people who are categorised as 'all rights exhausted', as the UKBA is only duty-bound to cover their costs for up to three months after that process.

"It can take a long time to remove these young people from the country, and that can lead to all sorts of social tension, as we saw in Folkestone earlier this year [when 17-year-old Osman Sherzad was stabbed to death during a brawl involving about 30 Afghan youths].

"UKBA is responsible for removing children who are 'all rights exhausted' and we are putting pressure on them to speed up that process."

There are currently just over 800 unaccompanied asylum-seeking children in Kent. Despite no increase in UKBA funding levels for the current financial year, the council has forecast a reduced shortfall of £800,000 for their care.

Last week, public sector union Unison warned that government cuts in funding for the care of unaccompanied child asylum-seekers risked creating a two-tier system in some local authority areas, with asylum-seekers receiving significantly worse care.

However, Cllr Whittle said KCC was not expecting the 15 per cent cut warned by the union.

She said: "KCC leader Paul Carter has been campaigning for some years to get a fairer settlement for Kent, and we are working very closely with the UKBA to come up with a deal where it would give us £750,000 to reduce the funding shortfall but only if we reduce things like accommodation costs.

"It's certainly not the case that there is a two-tier system in Kent. We have an excellent assessment and reception centre for asylum-seeking children, which has received very good reviews from the Children's Commissioner.

"A potential funding cut of 15 per cent has not been flagged up to us and is not an issue of concern for us at the moment. However, we will of course be keeping a close eye on the situation."

Hugh Ind, UKBA regional director for London and the South East, said: "We are working with KCC to ensure we remove those individuals who have no right to remain in the UK at the earliest opportunity."

RESCUE

Lifeboats called to Channel crash

THERE was drama on Wednesday night when life crews had to be called after two boats collided in the middle of the English Channel.

And as the picture (right) clearly shows, one was sinking. Life crews from both Dover and Calais were called out, along with an RAF Sea King helicopter, at around 6.15pm to reports of one vessel sinking and its occupants taking to life rafts.

The two small motorboats involved were both heading back to Dover when the collision occurred. One sustained damage to its stern and steering whilst the second vessel's hull was fractured, causing her to sink.

Three of the people from the more damaged craft were picked up by the helicopter and flown back to Dover.

The remaining man initially stayed aboard to assist in keeping the craft afloat, but was eventually taken aboard Dover lifeboat as the situation deteriorated.

Both craft were towed back to shore.

The RNLI's Martin Phillips, in command of Dover Lifeboat during the emergency, said: "This was a serious incident with fortunately a good outcome for the individuals involved and an excellent multi-agency multinational response to their predicament."

No-one was injured.

A COMPULSORY purchase order was served on the Dreamland site in Margate on Friday as council chiefs got tough in their mission to regenerate the site.

The site is owned by Margate Town Centre Regeneration Company. The council is working in partnership with the Dreamland Trust to create an historic theme park for the area.

It comes after negotiations had failed to see the transfer of the freehold of the cinema building and land.

→ Dig at college site

ARCHAEOLOGISTS digging at the site of a proposed new campus for K College have failed to find any additional traces of the Roman road and Second World War air raid shelter.

They were called in to the site of the development at Elwick Road, Ashford, as part of the college's bid to win planning consent for the scheme. If approved, it could be open by 2013.

MP demands Fifa corruption probe

By Steve Knight

steve.knight@archant.co.uk

CORRUPTION at the top of football must be stamped out if supporters are to have any confidence in the game, says an influential Kent MP.

Damian Collins – the Conservative member for Folkestone and Hythe – has called for a major shake-up at Fifa following a series of damaging allegations aimed at several of the world governing body's most senior members.

But his calls may fall on deaf ears after Sepp Blatter was re-elected as the organisation's president for another four years on Wednesday.

Among the principles Mr Collins says are essential for reform are independent scrutiny, democratic decision-making, open and public governance, shared power and transparent finances.

He added: "We in Parliament have a voice and I think we should use it; that's where the pressure on Fifa can come from. We need to speak on behalf of football fans around the world.

"It's important that we have confidence in the governing body of football because it's the world's game. If we don't have that confidence at the very top of the sport then how can anyone expect us to have it at grass roots level?"

PRESIDENT: Re-elected Sepp Blatter is among the Fifa executives accused

Mr Collins is a member of the Culture, Media and Sport Committee and was among those who quizzed former FA chairman Lord Triesman about the bidding process for the 2018 World Cup last month.

At the hearing Lord Triesman, who was initially chairman of England's losing bid team, accused four Fifa members of improper behaviour, including one who had allegedly asked him to arrange a knighthood.

"The more you get into it, the more people will privately tell you they have concerns about the way Fifa is run," said Mr Collins.

"Some very serious allegations have been made which warrant a full and serious investigation.

"Fifa is in a position where more than a third of its executive committee have had accusations levelled against them, including its president Sepp Blatter.

"That tells you there is a serious problem with the way Fifa does its business, and that it must take steps to prove it is a clean, open and honest organisation."

Blatter retained his position as Fifa president in an unopposed election after the only other candidate for the job, Mohamed Bin Hammam, pulled out when he was suspended over corruption allegations.

Sponsors associated with Fifa, including Coca-Cola, Adidas, Emirates and Visa, have also expressed their concern at the damage the allegations of corruption are causing the organisation.

Meanwhile, Chatham and Aylesford MP Tracey Crouch has been told she can no longer play alongside men in the Parliamentary football team.

The FA recently took over the running of the team but its rules state that only girls aged 13 and under can play in mixed-sex sides.

Ms Crouch said: "It's ridiculous to apply those rules to the Parliamentary football team. It's hardly the Premier League."

Expert doubts Olympics' sporting legacy

By Steve Knight

steve.knight@archant.co.uk

A PROMISE to increase sports participation through the legacy of the Olympic Games may be doomed to fail, warns a leading academic.

Dr Sakis Pappous, of the University of Kent's Centre for Sport Studies, says that research of the 2004 Games in Athens shows that the effect of the Olympics on sustained sporting activity is open to doubt.

However, the scholar admits it is not an exact science and that Lord Coe and the rest of the organising committee may succeed where Greece failed.

"There was a short-lived increase in sports participation in Greece of six per cent between 2003 and 2004," said Dr Pappous.

"However, five years after the Games, the percentage of people saying they exercise regularly had plummeted by 13 per cent to a level that was significantly lower than even the period before the Olympics.

"Moreover, it is not even clear that the short-lived increase in those exercising regularly was down to the Games effect, as Greece won football's Euro 2004 that year, which may have influenced sports participation."

Despite Dr Pappous' warning, politicians in Kent are confident of creating their own sporting legacy through the Kent School Games.

Held for the first time in 2008, the biannual competition has been a huge success involving more than 30,000 young people competing in 38 sports and disability events.

Double Olympic gold-medalist Dame Kelly Holmes is among those to have publicly backed the event, which was the inspiration for the Government's proposed new School Olympics programme.

But on a national level, Dr Pappous – who worked as a supervisor for the Organising Committee of the Athens Olympics and Paralympics – warns that the Games may only have a temporary impact on sports participation.

PASSING THE BATON:
Will London Games have a lasting impact on sport activity in the UK?

He said: "The data for the Greek population suggests that, if a broader strategy towards an active lifestyle is not implemented, then sporting excitement on its own will not sustain participation.

"It will be really interesting to see if London organisers achieve their ambitious plans and manage to turn the UK into a more active nation, or whether the results will have the same firework effect that we found in Athens.

"Will the enthusiasm for sport extinguish at the same time as the Olympic flame is put out in London? We will have to wait and see."

Last month it was announced that the Olympic torch will stop off at both Dover and Maidstone en route to the Olympic Stadium for the opening ceremony next year.

Almost 150 Kent businesses have won upper-tier contracts in helping to deliver a successful Games, while the county is also expected to receive a £324 million boost from tourism alone.

DROWNING

River death of young boy raises safety concerns

By Mathew Beech

mathew.beech@archant.co.uk

A RESCUER who pulled a teenager out of the River Medway just hours before a 12-year-old boy drowned has demanded more safety measures to prevent another tragedy.

Schoolboy Alex Chappell had been playing with friends on a rope swing above the river on Monday afternoon in Tovil, near Maidstone.

The non-swimmer slipped and fell into the water and despite a frantic attempt to save him, emergency services were unable to resuscitate the youngster.

Vanessa Everett, headteacher of Astor of Hever School, paid tribute to her student: "Alex was a very popular boy who will be greatly missed by his friends and teachers."

"Our thoughts and prayers are very much with his parents and family."

Earlier the same day, a 19-year-old man was minutes away from drowning further down stream, before being pulled to safety.

Thomas Long fell into the river at about 4am and was unable to swim to safety.

Colin Wallis, 41, spotted him in the water and immediately called 999 before starting a rescue attempt. He jumped down onto a moored boat, waking up the owner. The pair then launched an inflatable dinghy and managed to pull the struggling teen to safety, before paramedics started treating him for hypothermia.

Mr Wallis believes that incidents such as these could be avoided if further precautions and warnings are implemented along the river.

He said: "There are not enough notices along the river. There should be information on boards telling people about the dangers and the depth of the river.

"There's also a high drop from the walkway to the river and there are no railings there, only along where the steps are."

"I think we need safety rails along the river; ones that lift up to open and close so that boats can still moor up there for the river festival."

These latest two incidents come only six weeks after a 14-year-old drowned in the river following a kayaking accident.

On Sunday, April 17, Cameron Sandell capsized at Teston Lock and was unable to right himself.

Joe Giacomelli, spokesman for the Environment Agency, which is responsible for the UK's waterways, said: "We want people to enjoy being on or near rivers, but they need to stay safe."

"We always seek to improve water safety where possible, and we believe that educating people about the risks is a key part of that."

"We work very hard to spread water safety messages to parents and young people, and all those who take part in recreation activities on, in and around our waterways."

COMPENSATION

£100k for officer bitten by HIV asylum seeker

A CUSTODY officer bitten on the face by an HIV-positive asylum seeker has won more than £100,000 compensation.

Barbara-Ann Ennis, 40, from Ashford, now suffers from depression and post-traumatic stress disorder as a result of the unprovoked attack, which took place at Gatwick Airport in August, 2006.

The Army veteran, who was decorated for service in Bosnia and Iraq, sued her former employer – the security firm G4S Ltd – after it emerged the same detainee had bitten another officer just days before.

Ms Ennis revealed how she had to undergo six months of HIV treatment before doctors gave her the all-clear.

The woman who bit Ms Ennis, Sylvia Fileingoshisho, was later jailed for three years for the attack.

Ms Ennis received an out-of-court settlement from the firm after her psychological issues forced her into unemployment at the end of 2007.

G4S said: "We reviewed the recommendations of the investigation following this incident and incorporated those which were appropriate."

LEADING FROM THE FRONT:
Lt Oliver Augustin died when he was caught in the blast of an improvised explosive device in Helmand Province

WAR

Tributes paid to 'beautiful boy' killed on the Afghan frontline

By Mathew Beech

mathew.beech@archant.co.uk

PARENTS of a Royal Marine from Dartford, killed in action in Afghanistan, have paid a moving tribute to their "loved and cherished" son.

Lieutenant Oliver Augustin, 23, died after being caught up in the blast of an improvised explosive device on Friday, May 27, only six months after being sent to the frontline.

Lt Augustin was leading a patrol tasked to disrupt insurgent activity in the Nad Ali district of Helmand Province.

It Augustin – Ollie to family and friends – had only completed his officer training in December. His first appointment in the Marines was in command of the fire support group, Juliet Company, of the 42 Commando Royal Marines.

His mother and father, Jane and Sean, said: "Ollie was a much loved and cherished son. He was a beautiful boy who we were very proud of."

"He had many friends that he loved and who loved him in return. His warmth and humour lit a room and infected all around him.

"He dealt with people in a thoughtful and compassionate way. His independence and sense of adventure meant that he embraced life and his chosen path.

"Ollie, we will all love and miss you forever."

Lieutenant Colonel Ewen Murchison, Commanding Officer, 42 Commando Royal Marines, Coalition Force Nad Ali (North), said: "Lt Ollie Augustin was a troop commander with considerable potential and a bright future ahead of him.

"Despite only passing for duty a matter of months ago, he had already made a considerable impact within Juliet Company and across the unit.

"A charismatic young man, with a keen sense of humour, he was the life and soul of any gathering and touched all those who had dealings with him.

"As a leader he was inspirational, passionate and selfless, putting the welfare of his men above all else. They adored him and looked to him for direction, but looked on him as a brother in arms.

"At the time his life was tragically cut short he was characteristically leading from the front, taking the fight to the enemy; his audacity, commitment and courage clear for all to see."

The former Dartford Grammar School student left aged 18 for a year of travelling abroad and during this time spent two months teaching at a Kenyan school, and six months working in Australia.

On his return and whilst applying to join the Royal Marines as a commissioned officer, he studied at Bexley College and worked as a plasterer, beginning his officer training in 2009.

Lt Augustin was killed alongside Marine Sam Alexander, from London.

In 2009 Marine Alexander was awarded the Military Cross for gallantry and leaves behind a wife and young son.

EDUCATION

School's £10 million project to give Dickens' home back to the people

By Chris Britcher

chris.britcher@archant.co.uk

THERE can be very few headteachers whose place of work is the study in which some of the most glittering works of English literature were penned by one of the world's foremost authors.

When the children at the same school eat their meals in the very room that author died, you are aware of being somewhere rather special.

Because the author in question is Charles Dickens, and for the first time since his death in 1870, his former home is to be opened to the public.

Gad's Hill Place, a Grade I-listed Georgian property in Higham, near Rochester, is where the author wrote such classics as Great Expectations and A Tale of Two Cities.

It has been used by Gad's Hill independent school, the site's owner, since the 1920s. But next week the school will start work on a scheme to develop a new £10 million building in the grounds of the old house – paving the way for Gad's Hill Place to be turned into a museum and world heritage centre – a project which is expected to attract visitors from across the globe.

The ground-breaking for the new build at the Gravesend Road site will take place on June 9 – the 141st anniversary of Dickens' death.

Headmaster of the school, David Craggs, has long campaigned for pupils to vacate the historic and increasingly fragile 18th century house and for Dickens' home to be opened to visitors on a permanent basis.

He said: "While it is a real, and extremely rare, honour to be able to learn English in what was Charles Dickens' bedroom, it's no longer practical for our growing number of pupils to use this building. I will miss the unique privilege of running a school from the great man's own study, but eagerly await the completion of the new school buildings as they will provide a cornerstone for future success and will be better suited to educating children in the 21st century.

"All the pupils, parents and staff are looking forward to being in their new home by 2012."

The heritage centre is due to open to coincide with the 200th anniversary of Dickens' birth.

Marion Dickens, trustee of the centre and Dickens' great-great-granddaughter, said: "Since the house was turned into a school, public access to it has been very limited. Now, for the first time, people who love the books will be able to visit his home."

Clague Architects have been deeply involved in this scheme since its outset in 2006.

Andrew Clague said: "When all is completed, the school will have exceptional premises and the public will have access to a house that 'creaks' with its Dickens' history.

"The architectural idea is that the school will always be closely linked with the mansion and it forms part of the key view on entering the school. The mansion environs will be cleared of buildings that spoil its relationship with the countryside and it will be available to the public."

Dickens lived at Gad's Hill Place from 1856, until his death 14 years later in what is now the school dining room. At the time he was working on his final novel, The Mystery of Edwin Drood.

FESTIVAL

Vince and the New Power Generation

By Chris Britcher

chris.britcher@archant.co.uk

FOR anyone who has been in the music industry at any stage over the last 20 years, the name Vince Power carries significant weight.

Because the no-nonsense Irishman whose reputation precedes him to such an extent it arrives, stays overnight and enjoys a leisurely breakfast before his physical form appears, can be credited with much of the current renaissance experienced in the UK festival scene.

Having built up his Mean Fiddler live music venue empire from humble beginnings and selling it for millions, his CV includes vital stints assisting turning around the fortunes of such events as Reading and Glastonbury festivals.

Today, he is the man behind the Hop Farm Festival – a three-day musical celebration staged at the Paddock Wood venue which, he estimates, is directly responsible for injecting up to £20 million into the local economy.

And, for his latest trick, he has pulled yet another rabbit out of his deep, fur-lined hat.

They say the best things come in small packages. And for Mr Power, that package was finally delivered to him in a purple silk box and wearing a pair of high heels; Prince.

The Purple Rain star may well have long lost

TAKE IT EASY: The Eagles headline the first day

his commercial clout in terms of record sales, but his reputation as a live performer is rarely surpassed. The last time he was on these shores he played a remarkable record-breaking run of 21 nights at London's O2 Arena in 2007.

For the Hop Farm Festival, it represents a shot in the arm in terms of credibility and reputation. With a carefully crafted unique selling proposition of no branding and no VIP areas, the event has managed to stand out in an intensely competitive marketplace with some fine signings.

The Eagles perform their only UK show of the year on the Friday night. The trio of Iggy Pop, Lou Reed and Morrissey spearhead the Saturday day. And then there's Prince.

"There was a big competition to get him," Mr

MUSICOLOGY: Extra time has been added to the festival as Prince is to play the third day

Power explains from his London offices, as he surveys the impact, and column inches, of unveiling his Sunday night headline act.

"He was offered deals with various promoters, but he liked what we were doing here with the no branding. He liked the non-corporate thing."

Tied up as his only UK show of the year, it saw the performer top a list of acts aimed fairly and squarely at a demographic oozing disposable income and a desire to relive their youth.

"The first two years it was hard," Mr Power admits when he reflects on his Hop Farm experience. "Last year [with Bob Dylan headlining] it seemed to turn the corner. And now, if you look at the major acts on the bill, we're up there with all the major festivals."

Originally scheduled for just two days this year, the signing of Prince saw a third added.

Explains Mr Power: "It was always our intention to do three days eventually, but sometimes it is difficult to get the acts you want. You cannot just book anyone. You have to get the acts right. The integrity is very important to us."

All the artists are playing, as is the norm for festivals, for a flat fee. Normal shows would see them play for a guaranteed sum and then a percentage of the profits. Not that the fixed rate necessarily guarantees a certain set-list.

"The benefit to the artist of a festival is that you give them exposure to a huge amount of people who may not have seen them before," Mr Power explains. It's a quicker way of getting exposure.

"I've no idea what Prince, for example, is going to do with his set. I wouldn't dare to interfere in his artistic decision. All I do know for sure is that he's going to be on stage in Kent and he'll do what he wants on the day."

This year's event, Mr Power estimates, will see 120,000 people; a mix of those there for the duration and day-ticket holders.

With the meat of the legends, the dish has been spiced up with a splattering of contemporary performers to appeal to younger age groups, including rapper Tinie Tempah, The Killers' frontman Brandon Flowers, and Death Cab for Cutie.

The phrase 'family-friendly' is en vogue in the increasingly crowded world of the music festival, and Vince Power is no mug.

"Kids under 12 go free. It's great to encourage families," says Mr Power. "People love the idea of being there and camping. There is a sense of camaraderie at a festival. You wouldn't speak to people normally at a bus stop, but at a festival everyone's your friend."

JUSTICE

Prison hell after false paedophile claim

By Steve Knight
steve.knight@archant.co.uk

WHEN Nik Greene's adopted daughter falsely accused him of sexually assaulting her, he was instantly labelled a paedophile and sent to a dangerous French prison.

While there he was beaten, raped and even left to hang by fellow inmates who refused to believe he was innocent, as his solicitor and loving wife Trudy worked tirelessly to help him clear his name.

But Mr Greene, who moved to the Limousin area of France from St Margaret's, near Dover, in 2004, lived to tell the tale. And now he has won a top award for a book he wrote about the three-year ordeal.

Entitled False Accusations: Guilty Until Proven Innocent, the memoir reveals how the author eventually overcame what he describes as an "archaic, biased" French legal system to win his life back.

"Writing the book started off as a cathartic way for me to cope with what happened," said Mr Greene. "I'm a big guy and had never been frightened of anything, but this slaughtered me. I thought I was going to go to prison for 20 years and that left me completely devastated.

"I'm a psychologist so I know how important it is for people to go through the grieving process. Writing this book has helped me amazingly because it's forced me to talk to people about what happened. I've expressed my feelings and haven't held them in."

"I still get nightmares about my time in prison. Although I had to lie about why I was there – I told people it was for computer fraud – there were those who knew the real story, like the guards, and word got around, hence the attacks."

"On one occasion I was held down by several prisoners and raped by a big Russian guy."

"When he finished he hurled me up to a window and left me hanging there by a towel. If I hadn't pulled myself up on the bars I would have died very quickly."

Mr Greene's adopted daughter, whose name has been changed in the book to protect her identity, came from a troubled background and made the accusations to a schoolteacher in October, 2006.

He was remanded in custody for two months but released on bail when psychological tests determined he was unlikely to be a paedophile and posed no threat to the general public. But it took until August, 2009, for Mr Greene to be cleared of all charges.

Mr Greene, who plans to return to Kent and move to Birchington, near Margate, said: "I held my emotions together for my family but when I found out I had been cleared I just fell apart."

"I immediately called my friend and when he turned up 10 minutes later he had to pick me up off the floor. It was relief but also anguish at everything I had gone through, and all of it for nothing."

Last month, False Accusations was named the winner in the Best Non-Fiction category of America's National Indie Excellence Awards.

Mr Greene, 46, said he hoped the book would teach people not to pre-judge others, no matter how serious the crimes they may have been accused of.

"I want people to think before they do stupid things," he said. "Recently I walked into a French supermarket and was verbally abused by an Englishman who recognised me as the person these allegations had been made about. I want people to think about how they would feel if that sort of thing happened to them when they were innocent."

Woman on rail causes commuter chaos

RAIL commuters faced delays and train cancellations on Wednesday morning after a woman was found wandering on the tracks in Canterbury.

A British Transport Police (BTP) spokeswoman said: "BTP officers were called to Whitehall level crossing in Canterbury after reports of a woman on the tracks."

"The woman, a 66-year-old from Canterbury, was not struck or injured by the train and was subsequently sectioned under the Mental Health Act.

"Paramedics from the South East Coast Ambulance Service attended and the woman was taken to hospital for a mental health assessment."

The power to the line running from Minster to Ashford, via Canterbury West, was cut at 6.35am while the woman was removed.

It meant delays for the next hour to all services on the line with services either cancelled or delayed, leaving commuters with an average wait of 30 minutes.

Power was restored to the line by 7.28am.

A HOTELIER whose own holiday was ruined by illness says he is not surprised about a dramatic increase in complaints made about cruise operators.

Travel law experts at solicitors Irwin Mitchell have published their annual register of the five worst holiday destinations, and cruises top the list with almost a third of all complaints received.

Reuben Love, 54, and wife Kate, 41, who run the Crown Inn at Chislehurst, were looking forward to a 12-day tour of the Balkans but ended up spending the majority of their holiday ill in their cabins.

They are now taking legal action against Royal Caribbean in a bid for compensation.

Mr Love said: "I'd always wanted to go on a cruise and to go to Russia, so I thought this was going to be my dream holiday but it turned out to be the worst couple of weeks of my life.

"The first few days were fine

CABIN FEVER: Reuben and Kate Love caught stomach bug

but then everybody got so ill from a gastro-intestinal virus. We couldn't get near the medical centre because the queue was so long.

"Three days we tried to get down there because nobody would come up to us. It was as if they didn't want to know because it wasn't their problem."

Mr Love was incensed by a letter he received that said the couple's illness had been caused by their own poor hygiene.

"That really got me going," he said. "We run a hotel so cleanliness and hygiene are top of our list of priorities. Everything has to be immaculate."

According to Irwin Mitchell, 32 per cent of all complaints to the firm are from people who have been on cruise holidays.

Egypt is second in the list followed by Turkey, Spain and the Dominican Republic.

Clive Garner, head of Irwin Mitchell's travel law team, said: "The underlying cause of illness across these cases is a failure to implement reasonable standards of health, safety and hygiene. Although these problems are being highlighted time and again, not enough is being done to rectify them."

A spokesman for Royal Caribbean said: "As this matter is in the hands of lawyers and subject to formal legal proceedings we are unable to comment in regard to this specific case."

"We can advise, however, that our ships follow recognised and approved procedures and the health and safety of all our guests and crew is of the utmost priority."

Improvements restore grave of the Ashes' former owners

By Marijke Cox

marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

A LONG-FORGOTTEN grave of the original owners of the legendary Ashes has been re-dedicated in a special ceremony attended by the Australian High Commissioner.

It followed two years of work by the Cricket Society, which launched a major fundraising campaign for the restoration of the grave of the Honourable Ivo Bligh, the 8th Earl of Darnley, and his wife Florence Murphy at the St Mary Magdalene Church in Cobham.

The couple had kept the Ashes – the iconic trophy of the celebrated Test cricket series between England and Australia – at their home at Cobham Hall, near Gravesend, from 1883 until the death of Ivo, who had become Lord Darnley, when Florence passed it over to Marylebone Cricket Club (better known as the MCC) where it remains, on display at their headquarters at Lord's.

Their grave lay unnoticed for decades, falling into disrepair, until the Cricket Society launched a campaign to bring it back to its former glory.

Australian High Commissioner John Dauth joined the present Earl of Darnley, representatives from Kent County Cricket Club and about 140 others to celebrate the re-dedication of the grave.

Howard Milton, librarian at the Cricket Society, said the outcome of the campaign was a great success and that it was a memorable day.

"I was thrilled with the reaction of the Darnley family and the Australian High Commissioner, who was our special and most welcome guest," he said.

"The Cricket Society hopes that with this restoration this long forgotten memorial will be given its just place among the many historical attractions of Cobham village, offering to cricket followers an opportunity to pay their respects to a couple whose place in cricket history is assured."

The Ashes were created in 1882 during a cricketing tour of Australia. It followed a previous England loss at the Oval in an earlier Test series.

A newspaper had written a mock obituary to English cricket joking that its body would be cremated and the ashes sent to Australia.

The following winter's tour was billed as an attempt to reclaim the Ashes and the English team was successful.

A group of women from Melbourne, including Florence Murphy with whom Ivo Bligh fell in love, presented him with a terracotta urn containing the burnt bails of the 1882 tour and what became known simply as the Ashes travelled back with him to England and stayed at his and his new wife's home in Cobham Hall until 1927.

The Ashes have remained the symbol and trophy of the celebrated Test series.

The re-dedication service was conducted by the Archdeacon of Rochester, the Venerable Simon Burton-Jones, and the Priest-in-Charge, Cobham and Luddesdown, Reverend Angela Walker.

Mr Milton spoke of the grave's significance, recounting the history of the famous urn.

Canon Christopher Byers, past president of the Kent County Cricket Supporters' Club, gave an address and Michael Baker, grandson of the famous architect Sir Herbert Baker who designed the grave, spoke of its architectural importance.

Mr Milton added: "While the attendance of the Australian High Commissioner who created a fine impression, taking various Ashes comments in good part, was a major coup for the society, a little disappointing was the lack of any England Test cricketers, past or present, to appear, despite our chairman's Herculean efforts. But this did nothing to spoil a memorable day."

Contributors to the restoration campaign were the MCC, Kent County Cricket Supporters Club, the Cricket Writers' Club, and Sir Tim Rice, the famous lyricist and cricket enthusiast, through his charitable trust.

Beauty and the Beast

By Marijke Cox
marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

THE quest for the latest beauty treatments has taken many twists and turns over the generations. But springing up in a number of the county's high streets in recent months has come one of the most unusual – foot-nibbling fish.

Because the slippery Garra Rufa has become the latest must-have weapon in the pedicurist's arsenal when it comes to happy feet.

The fish, which are native to Middle Eastern river basins and originally discovered in the hot springs of Kengal in Turkey, are experts in exfoliation, cleansing and softening of the skin. In other words, they use their suction cup mouths to eat the dead skin on the foot, while leaving healthy skin well alone. And having proved a hit in the spas and beauty parlours of the US, the craze is now firmly in the UK.

It sounds a bit unpleasant, but the growing number of converts insist it is nothing other than a little bit ticklish, NIBBLE: The Garra Rufa fish eat only the dead skin on your feet while there are also said to be health benefits too.

Sufferers of skin conditions, such as psoriasis and eczema, have found the treatment alleviates symptoms – although this has been disputed by some – and the movement of the fish has also been proved to help circulation.

Already in Kent there are outlets offering the treatment in Tunbridge Wells, Ashford and Folkestone.

But despite the boom in interest, there are critics of using the fish for beauty treatments. Dr Andrew Kelly, the RSPCA's head of wildlife, recently said: "The Health Protection Agency is currently investigating the practice from a human health perspective and the practice has been banned in 14 states in the USA due to public health concerns."

"It is claimed that 'an enzyme secreted in the saliva of the fish does a great job of treating common skin conditions such as psoriasis and eczema'. In most vertebrates saliva does not contain enzymes, and in any case, salivary glands are rarely found in fish."

In addition, it raised fears over the health of the creatures being used.

Carolyn Lorimer is the managing director of the new Mizu Spa Fish Pedicure Experience in Folkestone, a newly opened high-end beauty venue which is aware of the concerns – but believes it is doing everything possible to ensure both fish and human emerge from the process enriched.

She explains: "Each of our tanks is filled with over 100 Garra Rufa of a variety of sizes.

"Our priority is health and safety of both our customers and our fish.

"We've gone above and beyond to ensure there are no health issues here. We also have a dedicated and professional team of staff who make sure there is no risk of infections through checking and cleaning customers' feet before they enter the tanks, which are also regularly cleaned."

And despite some people perhaps being squeamish over the unusual treatment, customers have heaped praise on both the spa and the unusual treatment.

"After ten seconds of laughing, I sat back and relaxed and let the fish go to work. It feels like a massage and you forget that it's fish nibbling your feet," said customer Mary Smith.

The service is priced at £10 for a ten minute session or £20 for half an hour, and business is proving brisk.

The strange, sucker-faced Garra Rufa fish are, it would seem, here to stay.

Reporter Marijke Cox tries her hand - or should that be feet - at some quality time with the Garra Rufa fish, courtesy of Mizu Spa in Folkestone

AS A sufferer of uncontrollable giggles at the slightest touch on my feet, I was slightly dubious about having them nibbled by a team of fish.

Nonetheless, I wasn't about to pass up the opportunity of having my hard, worn-out feet brought back into tip top shape, especially ahead of the summer when, after months of hibernating in big boots, they were about to make their first seasonal appearance in a pair of flip-flops.

On entering, the Japanese style and fresh, clean feel of the place took away any squeamish fears of fish eating my feet – this was a professional spa and not the beginning of some piranha-themed horror story.

The staff immediately made me feel at ease as I peered into the tanks to take a look at the unusual pedicurists.

After a wash of my embarrassingly un-girly, size eight feet, I was slipped into a pair of towelling flip flops and escorted over to a tank where I was instructed to sit down, put my feet together and dunk them in.

The first five seconds I laughed so loudly at being tickled that the rest of the customers in the shop looked over strangely, but after that the feeling developed into a massaging sensation.

If you don't look down you would be forgiven for thinking you were getting a massage from a foot spa.

At the end of my 30 minutes – so relaxed at this point I could've dozed off – a member of staff came over, dried my feet and carried on the pampering with a foot massage.

It was, despite my concerns, a real treat.

ANGLO-FRENCH RELATIONS

How companies could profit from the French connection

By Steve Knight

steve.knight@archant.co.uk

CROSS-Channel business leaders are being encouraged to work together to help improve Anglo-French relations.

Economic and political dignitaries from across the Opal Coast region – which includes Calais, Boulogne and Dunkirk – took part in a public debate last week when they agreed to step up their efforts to become better neighbours with Kent and the rest of the South East.

A key part of the discussion centered around the Trans-Manche Metro – a proposed new rail service linking Kent with northern France, which would provide commuters with regular high-speed trains from Calais to Ashford through the Channel Tunnel.

This, the leaders say, will enable people to live in France but work in England,

BUSINESS PARTNERS: Bid to build Anglo-French relations and vice versa.

"There's plenty of room on the tracks, at the stations and in the tunnel," said Thaddée Segard of Opal Link, which organised the public debate.

"Eurotunnel only uses about 57 per cent of the space available and technology has improved a lot over the last 10 years, meaning you can now run more trains inside."

"The Trans-Manche Metro would give more people the option of living on either side of the Channel, as it might make more sense for some to live in France but work in England or live in England but work in France.

"It could also have a big impact for companies that want to forge business relationships with firms on the other side. It could make more financial sense for a Kent firm to put money in France than it would to invest in, say, Yorkshire or Scotland."

Mr Segard has been campaigning for the Trans-Manche Metro to get the go-ahead since 2007, and is confident it could be in place before next year's Olympics in London.

In the meantime Opal Link plans to work with groups including Kent County Council and the Kent Invicta Chamber of Commerce to forge stronger cross-Channel relationships between residents and businesses.

One of the ways Mr Segard is already doing this is by translating articles in Archant KOS Media titles – publishers of this newspaper – into French.

He said: "In northern France we are much more like the people in the South East of England than in, say, Marseilles. In the Middle Ages we even used to speak the same language."

"We had a much closer relationship 500 years ago and we want to bring those links back today. That's why we're setting up business clubs and employment fairs to show it pays to have a workforce on both sides of the Channel."

"My father had a stroke recently. Whitehead Monckton helped me sell his home so he could move in to a care home and sort out payment of his care costs with minimal fuss. They also made sure his finances are now protected for his ongoing benefit."

CHARITY

Why you must take

By Chris Britcher

chris.britcher@archant.co.uk

AS KEEN runner Kay Bailey crossed the line at last year's Race for Life she was full of nothing but pride in her achievement and the knowledge she had raised vital funds for a good cause.

But just four days later her life fell apart as she was diagnosed with Hodgkin's lymphoma – cancer of the lymph nodes.

She had thought the lump in her neck was glandular fever.

"I never thought for one moment it would be cancer," she explained.

The mother-of-four had no idea she was seriously ill and had always lived a fit and healthy life.

After losing her father to cancer and her mother surviving a brain tumour, Mrs Bailey, a member of Thanet Roadrunners, had previously run five London Marathons and ten Cancer Research UK Race for Life events, raising more than £6,000 for the charity.

Now 48, and told she's in remission after three months of chemotherapy and three weeks of radiotherapy, she's more determined than ever to encourage women to line up and help support Cancer Research UK's life-saving work – and compete in this year's Race for Life events.

The supermarket worker explains: "The whole experience has been a real eye-opener. To be on the other side and a survivor you really appreciate where the money raised for Cancer Research UK goes.

"But sadly there are too many people that are not as fortunate as myself, so we need to keep raising money to support the great work of the dedicated scientists, doctors and nurses who investigate how best to prevent, diagnose and treat the disease."

She will be putting her best foot forward at the Race for Life in Palm Bay, Margate, on Sunday, July 24.

What's more, her 12-year-old twin daughters Chantelle and Tanya have been invited to officially launch the event by starting the Race for Life clock.

Race for Life organisers admit they fear falling short of their targets this year, and are making a big push to raise awareness of the 5k race – which can be run, jogged or walked. All money raised in sponsorship goes to support the fight against cancer.

Hayley Reynolds, Race for Life event manager for Kent, said: "Race for Life is a unique celebration of sisterhood and pride.

"The atmosphere is amazing, with local women from all walks of life coming together to make a positive difference to people affected by cancer.

ANIMALS

ABANDONED: Staffordshire bull terrier puppies need a new home

Sharp spike in puppies abandoned by owners

By Jenna Pudelek

jenna.pudelek@archant.co.uk

AN ANIMAL rescue centre has seen a huge rise in the number of unwanted Staffordshire bull terriers it receives as they are bred as 'status dogs' or for fighting.

Foal Farm, which is based in Biggin Hill, said the increase meant that 80 per cent of calls received by their dog team were now from Staffie owners who felt unable to cope and wanted their pet rehomed.

A litter of nine abandoned Staffie puppies are among the latest arrivals at the charity.

The pups are now nine-weeks-old and were taken in, along with their mother, at just four-weeks-old. They had a mystery gastric virus and needed round-the-clock veterinary care costing more than £1,000, but they have fully recovered and can be rehomed.

Kim Puttock, the charity's chief executive, said: "The Staffie is a particularly energetic breed and without the right level of stimulation they can become unmanageable. By the age of two many owners have the canine equivalent of bored teenagers on their hands and feel they can't cope."

"Staffies and Staffie cross dogs have had a bad press but are essentially good natured. It's when they are in the hands of irresponsible owners that problems arise. The majority brought to us could make perfectly good pets with the right owners."

She said the number of unwanted Staffies ending up in animal rescue centres across the country had soared in the last five years, particularly in urban areas where they are bred as 'status dogs' or for fighting.

Forest fight still to be won

Woodland Trust CEO Sue Holden calls on everyone who cares about the future of forests to speak up in the new government consultation

THE remarkable response in Kent and across the country earlier this year to Government plans to sell off England's public woodland highlighted just how much they matter to people.

With such precious sites as Bedebury under threat, thousands joined protests. Hundreds of thousands added their names to petitions demanding the Government think again.

Faced with overwhelming hostility, ministers shelved the privatisation proposals and promised a wide-ranging and independent review on the future of our woods and forests.

Last month, the Government launched its nationwide consultation on the future of our public woodlands. The opportunity exists to make a difference to our landscape for generations to come. But we can't be complacent. The danger is people believe the fight to save our woods has already been won. It hasn't.

Over the past 10 years over 300 ancient woods were destroyed or badly damaged. The existing rules simply do not provide serious protection.

Centuries of demand for timber and the clearing of forest for farmland have left us with fewer woods than virtually any other European country. This legacy has to be put right.

So we need to raise our ambition. Along with improved protection, we need to act decisively to replace the devastating loss of native woods.

All the evidence shows the public support these aims. But woods remain under threat from development, degradation and disease. The challenge is to make sure the case for better protection, re-planting and public access is turned into action.

The Woodland Trust believes a realistic target is to double Britain's native woodland cover. The consultation gives us the chance to make this ambition a reality. But it is not going to happen by accident. It is vital everyone who believes in the importance of our woods and forests for our quality of life responds to the consultation.

We will be urging our 400,000 supporters to ensure their voices are heard. But the more people who join them, the better.

There are three priorities. First, we need improved protection for our ancient native woods. They are Britain's rainforests, irreplaceable havens for wildlife and people. They add to the beauty of our country. And they are vital weapons in the fight against climate change, flooding and improving our air quality. We need to protect these assets and restore those which have been damaged.

Second, we should set a national goal to double our native woodland cover. The Woodland Trust has been creating new woods for nearly 40 years. But alone we can never do enough. Overall, there has been a decline in new plantings. To hit this target, we need as a country to plant 15,000 hectares of new trees every year – a three-fold increase on the present figure.

This means extending woods and creating new ones. It is ambitious, but it is achievable. And the results are surprisingly quick. It only takes 12 years before newly planted trees look and feel like a real wood.

Thirdly, we have to improve public access to, and involvement in, our woodlands. As we know from public reaction to the 1,000 woodland sites we manage, they bring tremendous health and leisure benefits.

The Government has been moved to listen. That's why this is a once-in-a-generation opportunity to shape the future of our woods and landscape for the better. So please take the time to make your voice heard.

KOS COMMENT

Anonymous failures keep us in the dark

IS IT really that important to know who is to blame when something goes wrong? According to some within County Hall, the answer is no.

The reasons for the collapse of Kent's child protection service are well known by now, but it seems unlikely we will ever find out who was truly responsible. That's a blow to the families of children put at risk due to the poor decisions made on behalf of social workers.

First tears shed over London 2012 Games

For many, hopes evaporated at the starting line. For others, the reality of facing up to their third or fourth choice options being given the nod.

But as the saying goes, it's not the winning but the taking part. Just don't try telling the empty-handed that.

Standing tall for the pylons

READING your paper, I was disappointed by the 'Pylons a blight on the landscape' headline.

We are very fond of the countryside and belong to the Kent Wildlife Trust, but who says that pylons are a blot on the landscape?

nothing offensive about them, and, in the modern world, we all need electricity. They are elegant and graceful, and blend into the landscape. How many people could tell you where their nearest pylon was?

We need to preserve what is good and beautiful, but the landscape is an organic, changing entity, moulded by the generations of people living at the time, to meet their needs.

Reckless as ever over cuts

THE comments about police cuts made to your paper by MP Mark Reckless demand a response.

As a former member of Kent Police Authority and a serving member of the Home Affairs Select Committee I would expect Mr Reckless to be far better informed on policing issues.

The Police Federation is not a trade union. The Police Federation is a professional body that exists to represent all matters of officers' welfare and efficiency.

It is the efficiency of the service, given the scale of cuts, which we seek to highlight.

Let me dispel some other myths pedalled by Mr Reckless.

It is outrageous when Mr Reckless claims it is "almost impossible to lose an officer, even if he or she is no good at their job". Through his membership of the Police Authority he knows that simply is not the case.

It is rather rich that such an accusation should come from an MP who was so intoxicated he couldn't do his duty on the day of the emergency budget last summer. I can assure your readers that such conduct would have attracted dismissal for a police officer.

Mr Reckless questions whether job losses will be as severe as projected.

At the last police authority meeting on April 20, he was present when the chief constable reaffirmed that Kent Police would lose 500 police officers and 1,000 police staff as a consequence of the cuts.

Did Mr Reckless challenge these figures?

No he did not. Mr Reckless appears to prefer making these claims when they cannot be scrutinised.

My challenge to Mr Reckless is simple: you seem to believe the answer lies in neighbourhood policing. If you believe crime won't increase then where would you cut 500 police officers from? Do we make the cuts in child protection and domestic abuse? What about surveillance or undercover work? Perhaps we should make the cuts in departments dealing with sex offenders or counter-terrorism?

The reality is you, like the Home Office, believe that policing is all about uniformed 'bobbies on the beat'. They are important, but policing is far more than just that.

In the last 10 years we have seen crime rates fall and police officer numbers increase. These cuts will see officer numbers fall back to the level in 2000 and crime will rise.

If Mr Reckless, like the public, "would obviously prefer more officers than less", perhaps he ought to do something about it.

Perhaps he ought to be questioning why in four years his government will be spending significantly more on overseas aid than it will on protecting its own citizens.

Ian Pointon, chairman, Kent Police Federation

UK the world's best cash cow

I AGREE with John R O'Nein in last week's KoS in that we lead the world in bribes (aid) to other countries and are always the first to help out in times of need.

This is not a bad thing, but there has to be a limit and our hearts shouldn't rule our heads.

Although we're over a trillion pounds in debt, we are still paying billions to support Greece, Portugal and Ireland to rescue them from their irresponsibility.

Millions of pounds are given to India, which can afford not to tax its rich, have nuclear arms, a space programme and still give aid to other countries.

We pay millions to China, a country whose industry is the envy of the world, and to corrupt African leaders to pay for their whisky, cigars and limousines.

We pay even more at home to support the people from all over the world beating a path to our door, to sample our benefits and lunatic 'human rights' type laws that protect murderers and rapists from justice in their own countries, while we pay their bills.

You'd imagine there must be a limit to what we can afford and even what the British people can take, but those bleeding us dry know they can always rely on the supine apathy of the British Government and the idiots who voted them in.

Meanwhile, despite our own problems, our previous largesse hasn't gained us any more respect in the world, or made anybody the more desiring of helping us in our time of need.

Phil Granger, West Malling

Our poor roads lead to Labour

AFTER reading last week's article 'Highways chief admits to vast shortfall in funding to fix county's roads', I must point out that it was in fact John Woodcock MP, Labour's shadow transport minister, who called Kent's roads "knackered" – not me.

Mr Woodcock's spin doctors wrote to local newspapers and media outlets in every Conservative council area in England, claiming their roads were "knackered".

Labour-controlled councils did not receive the same treatment – surprising that.

I wonder if Mr Woodcock (MP for Barrow and Furness) has ever visited Kent?

I welcome the £6.5 million grant we have recently received from the Government for emergency repairs, which was far more than we expected and far more than we ever got from the previous Labour administration.

In Kent we have repaired more than 36,000 potholes in the last 18 months, but it is true to say that we do need more money to bring all our roads up to a good standard.

The lack of financial investment in our road network started over a decade ago, and most of that time we had a Labour government who continuously cut spending for road maintenance and improvement.

As a result of those years we not only have (to use Mr Woodcock's words) some "knackered roads" in England, we also have a "knackered" economy. A fact Mr Woodcock has conveniently forgotten.

cabinet member for environment, highways and waste,

A taxing issue over pensions and injury

Q IN MARCH you wrote about how a pension paid because of an accident at work should not be taxed. I was injured at work and had six years added to my pension entitlement when I retired early. I spoke to my tax office, but staff there have not heard about the exemption you mentioned. I also called the pension agency in Lancashire, but officials there do not know about it, either.

A IF YOU retired early and received an extra pension because of your industrial injury then it seems to me that you are fully entitled to benefit under the tax exemption that I wrote about in March, when a reader won refunds all the way back to 1991. The basic rule is that anyone's job pension is taxable. But if someone who was not in a pension scheme at work was forced to retire early because of an industrial injury or illness, and was granted a pension as a sort of compensation from the employer, then that pension escapes income tax.

You are in a halfway situation. You were in a pension scheme, but when you had to retire early because of injury it was topped up and you were credited with an extra six years of pension rights. So the pension you would have got normally is taxable, but the extra six years entitlement is exempt. Tell your tax office to look at Section 644 of the Income Tax (Earnings & Pensions) Act 2003. This is the law that sets out all these details, and operates from April 6, 2003. And if your pension started before 2003, tell the tax man to look back at Extra Statutory Concession A62, which granted the same exemption in earlier years. If your tax office still turns you down, let me know. But if you win the exemption, do not forget to ask for it to be backdated to the beginning of your pension, which should bring you a nice refund cheque.

Q MY DAUGHTER and her partner have a rented flat, but want somewhere of their own. They have not been able to find a mortgage that is more than 80pc of any property's value. They can afford repayments, but if they have to save a 20pc deposit I suspect they will emigrate as they are both nurses and can work anywhere. One building society even told them they should beg, borrow or steal to raise the 20pc deposit because by next year this will be 25pc.

A THE HIGHEST loan-to-value figure I can find from any mortgage lender is 90pc, but this is only for joint applicants who are both graduates. Lots of nurses nowadays are graduates, so if your daughter and her partner qualify, point them towards Share To Buy (0845 686 0812), which is connected to the Co-op Bank. There are no fees, and interest is 4.29pc. Several lenders will go as high as 85pc, including HSBC, Yorkshire Building Society and Principality Building Society. One of the best deals is from Norwich and Peterborough Building Society, which will lend 85pc with interest at just 2.59pc for the first two years. It is true that strict new rules on mortgages will apply soon. Limits are still being drafted, but it is safe to say that the days of 100pc mortgages are over – at least for now.

TONY HETHERINGTON
MONEY CLINIC

Q MY WIFE and I had shares in Friends Provident, which have become shares in Resolution. I have 1,603 shares and my wife has 441. We were sent provisional allotment letters by Resolution, which I did not understand. We have now been sent certificates for 53 new shares and 14 new shares. I do look at the share price, and it was 69p, but suddenly became 238p, so now I am confused.

A FRIENDS Provident was taken over by Resolution in 2009. Resolution reorganised its shares so that one new share – with a higher price – replaced 30 old shares. Forget your 1,603 and 441 shareholdings. They are replaced by the new certificates for 53 shares and 14 shares. The allotment letters would have allowed you to buy more of the new shares, but you let that pass. Your shares are now worth about 310p each.

Q I WAS advised to invest in shares in BP shortly before the price fell after the Gulf oil leak. Can I claim compensation?

A ALL SHARES are risky. Unless you told your financial adviser to avoid oil shares, or you wanted nothing with any risks, then the decision was yours. If you made all this clear and your adviser still said to buy BP, then you may have reason to complain to the Ombudsman (0800 023 4567).

Q IS IT correct that if you are over 50 you can invest more in an Isa than anyone under 50? If so, what is the amount?

A THIS was true two years ago, but now the limit is the same for everyone: £10,680 per person, per year.

Get peace of mind at summer festivals

By Adam Aiken

MyMoney 24 editor

you are unfortunate enough to be a victim of theft, many home contents policies will cover you for items such as iPods and iPhones.

"Spending the extra cash to ensure you are protected is a small price to pay to enjoy festival fun with peace of mind."

Aviva, the insurer, said official crime statistics showed there were 945 reported thefts at the top seven UK festivals last year, with the combined value of the thefts some £190,000.

The company added that the typical festival-goer took possessions worth an average of more than £900 with them.

Jonathan Cracknell, a household underwriter at Aviva, said: "Tents appear to be the main target for thieves, so don't leave them crammed full of all your favourite electronic gadgets when you pop out for breakfast and perhaps think about carrying less expensive accessories with you when you are out and about."

Even if you do take the bare minimum with you in terms of possessions, the value of your camping equipment can soon add up, so it's well worth checking the small-print of your home insurance policy before setting off and, if need be, calling your insurer to upgrade it accordingly.

Calls for delay over mortgage review

THE mortgage market review (MMR) – a massive overhaul of the market being led by the Financial Services Authority – should be put on hold until the market has recovered from its current slump, a leading consumer group has said.

The Financial Services Consumer Panel, which advises the FSA on behalf of consumers, is concerned that people who took out home loans ahead of the financial crash will be unable to qualify for remortgages if the MMR is introduced too early.

In a report outlining its wishlist for a "sustainable and healthy mortgage market", the panel said: "The FSA needs to ensure transitional arrangements adequately provide for consumers who have historic mortgages that may now lie outside the responsible lending criteria."

"Whatever transitional arrangements apply, timing will be crucial: there is a danger that lenders will reject mortgages which they view as not complying with the MMR and so further restrict consumers' options during a period of general lending restraint.

"To avert this danger, implementation of new affordability rules should be delayed until the housing market has demonstrably recovered."

The panel also said it was vital for the MMR to include a requirement for lenders to assess whether consumers can afford repayments according to their individual circumstances rather than relying on a one-size-fits-all set of criteria.

Adam Aiken:

Hats off to this credit card provider

Tell your card company if you are going away

IT IS important to let your credit card provider know if you are going abroad either on holiday or for business, otherwise you run the risk of embarrassment at the checkout.

Thanks in large part to a huge increase in fraud, consumers are finding that banks and other card issuers are becoming more wary of sanctioning unexpected spending behaviour unless they have been given advance warning.

That means an attempt to use your card thousands of miles from home could well run into difficulty if your provider has not been informed in advance that you will be travelling.

"In an effort to protect consumers, banks are using increasingly sophisticated fraud intelligence systems to help identify unusual patterns of spending or high-risk transactions on cards," said Stuart McKeggie, head of credit cards at Sainsbury's Bank.

"A legitimate overseas transaction can sometimes trigger a referral note on your card that requires the retailer to make an authorisation call to the issuer."

"Unfortunately, sometimes retailers overseas decide to decline the card rather than make the call."

"It's a sensible precaution for cardholders to let their provider know if they're planning to use their card abroad, regardless of which country they're intending to visit, to help prevent triggering any anti-fraud security."

Research by Sainsbury's suggests that more than 3.5 million Britons have had their credit cards declined while overseas.

Card fraud cost banks £400m last year, with the number of victims jumping by 40pc to more than 2.4m people.

Now's the best time to grab the best interest-free deals

By Adam Aiken

MyMoney 24 editor

NOW could be the time to strike for credit-card users who want to juggle their debts, with a record number of cards offering long-term interest-free deals.

There are now more than 50 cards on the market that offer 0pc deals for a year or longer.

At the same time, the average interest-free balance-transfer period is now more than 12 months, up from less than 10 months a year ago.

"Even though the economy remains in a fragile state, there are a number of factors in the card providers' favour enabling them to offer these record-breaking deals," said Andrew Hagger, of Moneynet, which produced the data.

"Not only are borrowing costs very low, the Consumer Credit Directive – which came into effect in February – means lenders can be more selective. They now have to offer the best deals to only 51pc of successful applicants, compared with the previous requirement of 66pc."

The longest 0pc deal available at the moment is a 20-month offer from Barclaycard Platinum.

Elsewhere, MBNA, Virgin Money, Bank of Scotland and Natwest are offering 18-month deals (although bear in mind that virtually all 0pc cards levy balance-transfer fees, usually of about 3pc).

Bank of England figures suggest there is nearly £60 billion of outstanding borrowing on credit cards, giving the card providers plenty of opportunity to cherry-pick new customers.

Although card issuers offer interest-free balance transfer periods as loss leaders, they hope that any consumers they manage to attract will remain loyal – either deliberately or through inertia – once the initial deal has expired.

Mr Hagger said another attraction for the card companies was the pub-

CREDIT CARDS: There are a record number of long-term interest-free deals around at the moment

Offering long-term zero per cent deals generates massive free advertising

licity generated by the exposure of their brands in the best-buy comparison tables.

"Offering long-term 0pc deals generates massive free advertising exposure," he said. "The downside for consumers is that even though lower borrowing costs have enabled providers to offer extended interest-free terms, once the promotional deals expire the 'revert-to' interest rates remain stubbornly high."

If you want to switch your balance to an interest-free deal, remember that you will still need to make the minimum monthly repayments – and it's crucial that you don't miss a payment or be late with one.

If you do fall foul of the rules, it's likely that your card provider will cancel the interest-free deal immediately. Then you will find yourself stranded on a high interest rate – with no guarantee that you'll be able to shift the balance once again to another 0pc card.

PICK OF THE WEEK

In association with the experts at Moneyfacts.co.uk, we highlight some of the best new products launched this week.

Savings: Cheltenham & Gloucester

Cheltenham & Gloucester has launched its two-year fixed-rate cash Isa Issue 8 account. This deal pays a rate of 3.5pc maturing in July, 2013. A monthly interest option is available at 3.45pc. Savers can invest a minimum of £100. Earlier access is permitted but is subject to 120 days' loss of interest. Transfers in are accepted. The account can be operated in branch and by post by investors aged 16 and over.

Why is it good? A review of its Isa range sees the unveiling of C&G's competitively-priced two-year fixed-rate account. It sits just inside the top five products for its term. The fact that earlier access is allowed, albeit subject to penalty, should prove popular with savers.

Savings: Secure Trust Bank

Secure Trust Bank has launched its Fixed-Rate Bond Five-Year Term Series 1, which pays an annual rate of 5.1pc. Savers can invest between £1,000 and £1 million and further additions can be made while the issue remains open. Early access is not allowed. The account is available to savers aged 18 and over by post and telephone. Why is it good? Secure Trust has extended its range with the launch of this highly-competitive five-year deal, which has stormed to the top of the long-term fixed-rate bond market.

Mortgages: Halifax

Halifax has reduced selected mortgage deals, including some of its remortgage products. The most notable is the 2.69pc (Bank of England base rate plus 2.19pc) deal until July 2013 for remortgage borrowers only. The maximum loan-to-value (LTV) is 60pc and customers can borrow up to £1m. A fee of £1,240 is payable. Incentives of a free valuation and free legal fees are also offered. Why is it good? This latest product review sees the launch of a variable tracker deal designed for remortgage customers. The product offers a good rate, combined with a reasonable fee and generous incentives. The options to make overpayments, make underpayments and take payment holidays should appeal to those looking for a flexible mortgage product.

Mortgages: Santander

Santander's new product offers a rate of 5.79pc until August 2013 to borrowers with deposits of 10pc or more. Available for first-time and second-time buyers only, this deal has a maximum borrowing amount of £1m and a low arrangement fee of £99. Incentives of a free valuation and a £250 rebate upon completion are also offered. Why is it good? This latest offering from Santander should please borrowers who are looking to keep their initial costs to a minimum. A high LTV of 90pc, a low arrangement fee and a generous incentives package makes this a good overall package. The option to make overpayments of up to 10pc of the outstanding balance will also help to boost its appeal.

INSIDE THIS WEEK

HIGH Speed 1 came through the first of its freight-train trials with flying colours, paving the way for use by European operators. Assuming the four remaining test runs are completed in similar fashion, it is only a matter of time before the Kent track is given the green light to accept European-sized freight trains from across the Continent. This will spark a shift to rail use for importers, helping to make the UK more competitive.

Play part in port-privatisation plan by setting funding goals

By Simon Robinson

simon.robinson@archant.co.uk

DOVER Harbour Board bosses have begun a further round of public consultation with regard to their privatisation proposals.

The organisation has amended its application, submitted in January last year, to meet the new government's revised set of criteria for the sale of Trust Ports, such as Dover.

Under the original plans, the Port of Dover Community Trust (PDCT) would be established alongside a new operating company (OpCo), which would exist as a subsidiary of the Dover Harbour Board (DHB).

The PDCT would receive a £10 million initial cash settlement from OpCo as well as funds for the purchase of shares in the port, which are anticipated to have a value of some £20 million at the point of sale.

It is estimated that the PDCT could have an economic impact of £95 million over the first five years and £60 million annually thereafter.

Now as part of the Trust's community participation pledge, Dover businesses can play a large part in deciding where this extra revenue goes.

At the public consultation launch event at Harbour House on Tuesday morning, DHB bosses unveiled an economic benefit forecast table that showed the Trust's creation would lead to an added £51 million during the next five years for SMEs (small and medium enterprises), start-ups and local supply chains.

This figure is based on an equal 25 per cent

DHB: Finance director Tim Waggett, chief executive Bob Goldfield and chairman Roger Mountford launched the period of public consultation, which ends on Monday, June 27.

funding split between support for business, skills and education, neighbourhood improvement and social cohesion.

But DHB chiefs were keen to stress that the allocation of funding – and its subsequent economic return – was in community hands.

A report carried out by independent consultants Arup states: "In practice, the economic impact on the area and the longevity of supported employment will be highly variable and dependent on the characteristics of the projects supported by the PDCT and the balance between economic and community projects."

DHB chairman Roger Mountford said he wanted to "engage" with the Dover community. "The PDCT represents a fundamental change in the port's relationship with the town and district and provides for the first time an opportunity for the community to benefit directly and financially from port activities and to share in the port's success," he said.

"This is an exciting time for the Port of Dover and most especially the community. With the help of the entire port community and the town of Dover, supported by new investment, it really could become the expanded, world-class port facility we wish to see for the benefit of future generations of users and for the community of Dover as a whole."

DHB said the proposed privatisation was crucial to the port's future, insisting that remaining a trust port was "no longer a viable option".

Finance director Tim Waggett said: "Our future lies in the private sector, where we can expand the business, add value, create jobs and secure those jobs that already exist. Without privatisation, investment will be severely curtailed and growth – therefore jobs – compromised.

"As we cannot borrow, we need access to the capital markets to guarantee further investment. Not only that, we will be largely unable to make the contribution that we need to make, and wish to make, to the regeneration of Dover. We are firmly of the view that remaining a trust port is no longer a viable option for Dover. The business is too big and successful for that status but will inevitably suffer if it cannot invest and grow."

EMPLOYMENT

Talented students ready for work

EXPANDING businesses are being encouraged to go to the University of Greenwich for their next employee.

The university, which has a campus at Chatham Maritime, offers a free Graduate Talent Bureau (GTB) to businesses, which matches new job positions to its 9,000-strong pool of graduates and postgraduates.

A spokesman said: "The university's graduate talent pool is made up of high-calibre graduates who have undergone assessment to ensure they meet the highest employability standards.

"We have access to a large number of energetic, motivated and talented graduates who have a wealth of skills and knowledge as well as personal qualities that can make a real contribution to your business."

The GTB gives businesses the opportunity to advertise their vacancies for free. Applications are then filtered so only the most appropriate candidates are put forward.

For more information, call 020 8331 8810 or visit www.gre.ac.uk/gtb.

TRAINING

Business basics on offer online

DRAGONS' Den star Theo Paphitis has launched an online business-essentials toolkit giving start-ups the key skills needed to survive and grow.

The Smarta Business Builder was set up after a survey carried out by NatWest showed new small businesses in the South East were struggling to master the essentials – putting their future at risk.

Sixty per cent of SME respondents in the region said cashflow was a serious issue, while 57 per cent said they had under-estimated costs.

Stationery tycoon Theo Paphitis said: "At a time when we need businesses to thrive, too many good businesses risk failure because they struggle to manage the basics early on. Many small business lack the time and money to get essentials such as business plans, accountants or websites in place – getting them all in one place through Smarta Business Builder will free them up to concentrate on what they're good at and growing their business."

INVESTMENT

Bronze award for Kings Hill charity

A CHARITIES-supporting charity has been awarded the Bronze Investors In People title after coming through a rigorous assessment process.

The Charities Aid Foundation (CAF) became one of just 800 organisations in the UK to receive the award, which recognises employers who achieve three principles of planning, doing and evaluating to improve organisational performance.

Human resources director Corinne Wells said: "It's really exciting that we have achieved this award. It recognises the great people working at CAF who are dedicated to making the environment for charitable giving the best that it can be."

The CAF is a charity set up to help other charities by working with donors, companies and charities to encourage and facilitate a culture of giving.

It offers products and services that make giving easier and help charities to make the most of donations through its banking and fund-raising support services.

COMMENT

DOVER businesses should jump at the chance to influence the spending plans of the proposed Port of Dover Community Trust (PDCT).

While the port's privatisation is anything but a foregone conclusion, it makes sense to get behind Dover Harbour Board's plans, which give real power and leverage to the community.

A report carried out by independent consultants Arup has shown that the PDCT could have a £95 million economic impact on the surrounding area during its first five years of operation and £60 million thereafter.

Dover residents and businesses are now being asked to comment on how best to divide that sum between economic and community projects. It is your chance to raise your business concerns. What areas desperately need funding? Does the area need to support its existing SMEs or invest in fresh start-ups?

Kent was not allocated a penny in funding during the last round of the Coalition government's Regional Growth Fund cash, and the North looks set to take the lion's share on the next round, too.

With that in mind, it is imperative that Dover businesses make their voices heard to the Dover Harbour Board to ensure the much-needed money generated from the port's privatisation is used wisely.

High-speed railway open to freight after trial run

THE High Speed rail link remains on track for use by European-sized freight trains after a successful test run was carried out.

DB Schenker Rail ran a loaded freight train on High Speed 1 (HS1) in the early hours of Friday, May 27, to test the Kent track's handling of larger trains from the Continent.

The trial – the first of five due to be carried out before the end of June – was declared an outstanding success by both DB Schenker Rail and HS1.

Once these trials have been completed, DB Schenker Rail will connect the UK via the High Speed 1 route to the rest of its pan-European rail-freight market, opening a new service for customers to export and import goods more efficiently using larger wagons.

HS1 chief executive Nicola Shaw said: "HS1 is the UK's only high-speed rail line and the connection we provide to mainland Europe is open to freight and passenger operators."

"We are delighted to be working with DB Schenker Rail and other freight operators."

"These successful trials pave the way for the introduction of regular freight services between the UK and Europe."

DB Schenker Rail UK's chief executive Alain Thauvette added: "Another significant step forward to enable larger freight trains travelling from anywhere across Europe on the DB Schenker Rail pan-European network to London has been taken. The opportunity to increase modal shift between road to rail on cross-Channel operations is fast becoming a reality."

HS1 Ltd owns and operates the 109km High Speed 1 railway line, the UK's only high-speed railway, as well as St Pancras International, Stratford International, Ebbsfleet International and Ashford International stations.

DB Schenker Rail is Britain's largest rail-freight operator, serving all parts of the UK and mainland Europe via the Channel Tunnel.

Look, love, women won't be your mate if you keep calling them hun

DEMEANING pet names are among female workers' biggest office peeves, a study has found.

In a survey of 3,000 women, 75 per cent of respondents said being referred to by names such as love, babe or hun was unacceptable.

A quarter of those questioned said such terms made them angry and 5 per cent said they had lodged an official complaint.

The study was conducted by Bluefin, which has offices in Ashford, Dartford and Gravesend.

Head of marketing Peter Elliott said: "Although pet names are rarely used with the intention of being offensive, the repeated use of such terms in the workplace can cause aggravation, which over a long period of time can lead to a build-up of resentment and hostility."

"The terms listed in this research are often cited in wrongful-dismissal and sexual-harassment claims and businesses need to be very careful about allowing such language to be used in the workplace."

"This problem is likely to be amplified where women are in the minority and business-owners need to ensure they do not permit a laddish environment to develop which may lead to feelings of victimisation among female workers."

According to the research, the pet name most likely to anger women in the workplace was love, with hun and mate also featuring high on the list.

Although such terms are most likely to be used in face-to-face conversations, many women reported that they were regularly referred to in such terms on the phone and in emails.

Small businesses fear health and safety burden

HEALTH and safety regulations are a major burden on businesses, a report has revealed.

The finding was revealed by the British Chamber of Commerce (BCC), which surveyed almost 6,000 members across the country.

Almost half of all respondents (47 per cent) said stringent health and safety rules hampered business.

A fifth of sole traders said the legislation acted as a barrier to them taking on their first employee.

The cumulative cost of health and safety regulation in the UK amounts to more than £4 billion.

The BCC has recommended that regulation should be tailored to the risk level of the workplace, while legislation should be streamlined to reduce costs and confusion.

Kent Invicta Chamber of Commerce chief executive Jo James said: "It is unfortunate that so many small firms seem to perceive health and safety regulations as a barrier to expansion and employment."

"While it is undoubtedly true that the legislation could be simplified and streamlined, to employ people and then suffer from sickness and accident problems caused by a lack of health and safety care would be an even greater burden."

"It is important that the welfare of employers and employees is protected, and although the regulations are rigorous, when properly applied they are far from insurmountable."

"As a Chamber of Commerce we have a network that can guide employers through the health and safety requirements, and I urge prospective employers not to be put off but to consult us so we can help."

Bravely keeping us connected

FORMER features writer Lizzie Hodgson could lose everything – and she's ok with that.

The Indiconews Ltd chief executive has given up the mundane yet comforting tedium of steady, gainful employment to realise her cutting-edge communications vehicle, packaged as Civicboom.

The editor-turned-entrepreneur has already downsized her house to help finance the business, and risks losing much more if it all goes wrong.

But strangely, this fear factor gave Hodgson the confidence to go it alone in the first place.

"My situation terrified me yet at the same time it's not scary at all," she said. "What's the worst that could happen? In theory, I could lose my house. But I plan not to. That said, I believe that if you're comfortable with the worst case scenario you can achieve anything. I'm comfortable with that."

"There have been some hairy moments that we've had to get through and it's really tough out there but every start-up has to go through times like that. I can't imagine my life not being like this now."

Civicboom gives online enterprises the chance to fully engage with their audiences in a mutually beneficial way.

It's the next generation Twitter/Facebook – bringing consumers into the content-gathering equation, rather than simply serving them with the finished product to 'like'.

Hodgson's original intention for the API – application programming interface – was to help local newspapers reconnect with their audiences. Indeed, it was a local American newspaper that first inspired her eureka moment, in 2003.

Hodgson said: "I was in Washington DC in a café and reading a local newspaper. I remember realising what I was seeing on the streets was not being reported in the paper.

"This was long before the days of YouTube and Facebook, and Google was just four years old. Clearly, the technology was not up to speed at the time. But at that point I knew there was something around what was happening on the streets and what news providers needed – there was a clear gap there."

By 2008, Hodgson's vision had been part realised with the emergence of citizen journalism. More and more readers were taking an active, if unsolicited, role in the news by presenting their information on blogs and websites, as opposed to sending it on to traditional news organisations.

Hodgson launched a citizen journalism website that year

The BIG Interview

Civicboom creator Lizzie Hodgson had her eureka moment in a cafe in Washington DC in 2003. Unfortunately for her, she had to wait until technology had advanced sufficiently to turn her idea into a reality. She told Business Week editor Simon Robinson about her company.

but was still frustrated by the format's lack of immediacy and cohesion between contributors and consumers. But then came a huge step in mobile phone technological advancement and with it crowdsourcing.

Users, such as a newspaper, can put out a call for information on its website, be it photos, video, text or audio, and this request will be sent direct to all its members' Android phones.

Hodgson said the technology was a win/win for both news providers and their readers.

"The concept of a passive consumer has now been flipped on its head by the mobile phone. Society has also matured and no longer wants to sit back and just accept the news as it is provided – they want to contribute."

"For the news organisations, it gives them a chance to bring their readers into the news agenda, which is a fantastic way to gain new readers as well."

"I want Civicboom to become the premier crowdsourcing platform in the UK; the go-to company. I want to familiarise people and organisations with the concept of crowdsourcing.

"Then we can help reinvigorate interest in local news, which is so important for democracy, for community cohesion. For too many people it is seen as dull, but I think it's the most important form of news.

"If the readers have ownership of what goes into their newspapers they might take ownership of their community and vice versa."

Hodgson's three developers wrote 40,000 lines of code since launching in February and they are now at the point of rolling the product out across the UK with an eye on the US soon after.

And the entrepreneur is quick to recognise the hard work her team has put in.

When asked what gets her out of bed in the morning, she said: "In all honesty, my team. I believe I have the three best developers in Kent. They are awesome. We are passionate about what we're doing. It's an exciting area to be in right now. I want collaboration to be the new rock and roll."

Hodgson also recognises those who have helped her transform from an entrepreneur into a businesswoman.

She said: "The difference between a businessman and an entrepreneur is that a businessman has gone through the ranks and made a healthy profit. An entrepreneur just has an idea but doesn't know if it's going to work or not. They've got to take a risk with it."

"I don't have the credentials of a businesswoman. I just had an idea. We've got it to where we are now because I've had phenomenal support from friends and family, plus I have an incredible partner who has endured all the hard times because they believe in me."

"But now as a company we're far more organised having sourced external investment from Willow Investment and another Angel Investor, meaning we have a strategy.

"You then have to meet people and convince them to help you get to the next stage. Innovation & Growth have been a crucial organisation to us.

"Their support has been really important as they have offered guidance, mentoring and help in finding investors.

"They have recognised in us that we are potentially a high growth international company and have been that extra person we needed.

"There needs to be more organisations like them to give start-ups a helping hand. We need innovation and start-ups – people taking a risk.

"It's now, more than ever, that we should be fearless. It's the only way we will burst out of the recession."

Businesses asked to speak up on rubbish consultation

By Simon Robinson

simon.robinson@archant.co.uk

BUSINESSES are being invited to help shape the future of waste and mineral industries in Kent.

KCC will use feedback from firms and landowners to prepare a 20-year framework aimed at supporting the county's waste and mineral industries.

Almost 100 existing and potential sites for development have been put forward to the authority during the last year.

Now planning chiefs have thrown the ball back into businesses' court by starting an eight-week period of consultation. During this time, waste and mineral companies are being asked to give their views on how best to take the industry forward.

Once the eight weeks are up, there will be a sifting process of sites, followed by a further round of public consultation to inform the final documents. These will then be presented at a public examination and the Planning Inspectorate will make recommendations on the final framework.

KCC waste boss David Brazier, who is heading the team preparing the plans, said: "Waste and mineral operations can mean a welcome jobs boost for communities, and companies have told us where they want to work."

"We have already received 1,000 comments in the first stage of this process. Now it's time for businesses and residents to have their say."

JOB AND DEVELOPMENTS: The proposals will help form a 20-year framework

"Businesses are already very active in mineral production and waste activities in Kent. This is about planning for their future needs. We are also looking for modern, innovative ways of working.

"The comments we receive during this consultation will help us shape the future of these two important industries in Kent. This is a great opportunity for everyone to contribute and make a real difference in their community. Your views can influence whether or not sites are suitable to go forward at this stage."

See www.kent.gov.uk/mwdf for further information.

Excellent customer service ensures van centre registers new contract

PRODUCTIVITY at a Dartford van centre is set to shift up a gear after it secured a £7 million order.

Beadles Volkswagen won the account to supply up to 120 commercial vehicles for National Cash Registers (NCR). The deal will see the firm roll out Caddy BlueMotion and Maxi Life vans in NCR colours during the next two years.

Beadles brand manager Keith Banks said: "This is a fantastic account to win and provides evidence of our customer service excellence standards.

"We look forward to providing NCR with their fleet of commercial Volkswagens and to continuing a successful business relationship."

NCR's UK supply manager John Gorringe said: "This is a significant investment by NCR in the UK market and we're delighted with the way everything has been handled. When considering the fleet, NCR has looked at its green credentials and this played a huge part in the company choosing the Volkswagen Caddy BlueMotion vans.

"The low CO<sub>2</sub> emissions and high miles per gallon ratio were key factors in NCR's decision."

"But it was the customer service we received from Beadles Volkswagen Van Centre, Volkswagen Commercial Vehicles and LeasePlan that made it a simple decision."

Kent tourism boss given national call-up

VISIT Kent chairman Amanda Cottrell must focus her attention further afield after being appointed to the board of Visit England.

Mrs Cottrell, who lives in Challock, near Ashford, said: "It is a great honour to have been appointed to the VisitEngland Board and support this important industry which contributes so much to our economy, our heritage, our environment and our quality of life from the national level.

"I shall, of course, continue in my role with Visit Kent and I fully intend to be flying the flag for Kent at every opportunity."

"The work of VisitEngland is key at this time as individual areas of the country are now facing significant reductions in their public funding and are aiming to develop new partnerships across the industry and sustainable destination management organisations."

Mrs Cottrell was appointed to the Visit England board by Tourism and Heritage Minister John Penrose.

Focus is key if you want to capture that vital funding from the banks

By Simon Robinson

simon.robinson@archant.co.uk

THE big five banks have failed to hit an agreed Government lending target – falling short by £2.2 billion.

The Government's Project Merlin was supposed to ensure the UK's largest banks, including those owned by the taxpayer, pursued an active lending agenda, particularly in the SME market.

The agreement was designed to see £19 billion lent to the UK's small and medium-sized businesses in the first quarter of 2011, but that target has been missed, with total lending coming in at just £16.8 billion.

With funding remaining a key issue for the region's businesses, the Innovation and Growth Team (IGT) has announced a series of three seminars for high-growth companies aimed at helping resolve the problem.

Finance lead Phil Beavan said: "As a team we focus on high-growth businesses, and as growth is the biggest burner of cash we are involved in a huge number of funding issues.

"The fact is that businesses need to up their game in their approach to securing finance – firstly by understanding why banks appear reluctant to help and secondly by having a good grasp on the alternatives.

"The answer is often a mixture of the two.

"There has been a fundamental shift in the way banks price and view debt and if businesses had a better handle on these changes then they would be able to tailor their approaches accordingly, making propositions more attrac-they need. Mr Beavan said: "We have arranged for one of the area's leading regional bank managers to talk about how the banks price deals, what they like, what they do not like and crucially why.

"Not all of this is at the banks' best – much has been foisted upon them and businesses need to know what the lie of the land is. In addition, we will have three of Kent's most active and respected Business Angels speaking about what they look for in the businesses they back and bringing home the reality that too many businesses are undercapitalised and over geared."

The seminars also include the op-

Don't expect Time to Pay as squeeze tightens

STRUGGLING small businesses are being squeezed by the Government, figures reveal.

In the past two years, Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs has increasingly hardened its position on accepting Time To Pay (TTP) applications, which allow SMEs to delay paying outstanding business taxes.

The TTP arrangements, implemented by the previous Government, were taken up by 400,000 small firms, which have collectively deferred paying tax worth £6.83 billion.

But with the Government looking to close the budget deficit, HMRC has reined in the TTP scheme in recent years, with the percentage of requests refused during Q1 rising from 2.7 per cent in 2009, to six per cent in 2010 and 9.3 per cent this year.

Crowe Clark Whitehall tax partner Simon Warne said SMEs should look to keep a firm handle on their finances in order to avoid the need of a TTP arrangement.

"The number of applications rejected by HMRC has doubled since 2009 and must be seen in the broader context of the Treasury pressuring other Government departments to help it reduce the deficit," he said.

"The best thing to do is to avoid TTP in the first place. Maintaining a steady cash flow, managing stock effectively and implementing staff pay freezes rather than making rash decisions such as redundancy can all help businesses avoid having to ask HMRC for favours.

"The TTP scheme has been called a ticking time bomb as the debt was always going to have to be repaid – it's just a question of when."

The tightening of HMRC's attitude to TTP follows its recent announcement that it is to examine the quality of record keeping by small businesses through its Business Records Checks campaign. This could bring the exchequer £600 million in fines over the next four years by scrutinising the records of 200,000 businesses and fining them an expected average of £3,000 for inaccuracies.

Warne added: "The last few months have been tough for small businesses, with many unable to pass on the cumulative effect of the rise in commodity prices, the increase in National Insurance and rocketing fuel prices to their customers. As a result many companies will continue to find it tough and HMRC's hardening attitude may push many into administration."

Businesses interested in seeking expert advice on tax and business planning can contact Simon Warne on 01622 767676 or by emailing simon.warne@crowecw.co.uk.

Banks sign up to help firms go eco-friendly

NATWEST and RBS have launched a £50 million renewable energy fund in a bid to help firms go green.

The cash has been made available after research carried out by the banks revealed that one third of agricultural firms wish to deploy renewable energy – including solar panels and wind turbines – at their farm to reduce running costs, as well as carbon emissions.

Furthermore, more than half of these businesses said they would need funding from their bank to take this forward.

The banks' head of agriculture and renewable energy Ian Burrow said: "We're serious about being at the forefront of helping UK businesses switch to a more sustainable way of meeting their energy needs."

"We have nearly 200 relationship managers trained in covering the technical, legal and financial considerations specific to renewable energy – no other bank can offer this depth of knowledge and level of service to SMEs."

For more information call NatWest on 0800 092 9116 or RBS on 0800 073 0264 or visit nrbs.co.uk/agriculture.

It's jobs for Kent

Logistical support for unemployed

YOUTH charity the Prince's Trust has teamed up with a global logistics company to help unemployed young people from Medway and Maidstone find jobs.

One in five Kent residents aged 16-25 is currently unemployed, and the trust is holding a free two-week course aiming to address the skills shortage in the county.

During the Get into Logistics sessions at DHL's National Health Service supply chain site in Maidstone, participants will gain hands-on experience in the industry as well as developing their job skills, confidence and motivation.

The course runs from June 13-24 with a taster day for those interested in signing up being held on Wednesday, June 8.

Run in partnership with the German firm DHL and funded by its charitable arm the DHL UK Foundation, the scheme will also give young people a unique insight into how a logistics company is run.

"The support of the DHL UK Foundation is vital in helping young people into work," said Natalie Ross, acting regional director for the Prince's Trust in London and the South East.

"It's particularly important in this difficult economic climate."

During the course each young person will be matched with a mentor from the company for support and encouragement.

It is open to males and females alike and aimed particularly at young people classed as Neet (not in employment, education or training).

More than three in every four young people helped by the Prince's Trust move into work or training, and after the DHL course participants will receive six months' support to help them into education or employment.

Gerrit Van Rensburg, HR business director for DHL, said: "Too many youngsters feel they will never reach their full potential. We are thrilled to be able to make a difference to the lives of Maidstone's young people."

The logistics course is the 14th 'Get into' programme run by DHL across the UK, and is part of a long-term commitment to support the communities in which it operates.

More than 100 young people have now benefited from the scheme.

Mayoral gift requires Government support

By Steve Knight

steve.knight@archant.co.uk

A FORMER mayor who has launched a new charity for apprentices has called on the Government to do more to help companies afford them.

David Jukes' outgoing gift to the people of Tunbridge Wells and the surrounding areas was to set up a fund offering grants to apprentices towards tools and their training.

But the 69-year-old former construction boss says more needs to be done to help firms – particularly those in his industry of expertise – take on trainee bricklayers, carpenters, plumbers and so on.

He said: "The Government says it wants to create 400,000 new apprenticeships this year but that's a pretty big target when they're not doing much to help companies afford them.

"A lot of small businesses are keen to take them on because apprentices will help them expand. For years firms have been importing skilled labourers in from abroad, but since the recession that has slowed down a lot so we need to replace them with our own.

"A company will only start to make money out of an apprentice once he takes out his tools and becomes useful, so I'd like to see tax breaks for those which take them on.

"The qualifications should also be simplified so they are more job-specific, and a commitment to employ apprentices should also start to be built into section 106 planning agreements."

Cllr Jukes reached the end of his term as mayor of Tunbridge Wells a fortnight ago.

But rather than leave a gift to decorate the office, he instead broke with tradition and launched the David Jukes Craft Apprentice Fund to mark the end of his time in office.

Thousands of pounds worth of donations have already flooded into the charity after he contacted former colleagues in the industry, some of whose careers he helped launch by taking them on as apprentices.

He said: "Not everyone wants to go to university. Labour in 1997 said it wanted 50 per cent of young people to go to university, but where does that leave the other 50 per cent? Having to support everybody else, that's where.

"A lot of youngsters who go to university are very clever but they're useless because they can't do anything with their hands.

"Some people will never be very good academically, but they will still contribute a great deal to the economy because they're good at practical things.

"That's where apprentices come in, and that's why I've launched this charity to help them in any way I can."

Creative and historic experiences promised at new learning courses

CANTERBURY Christ Church University is offering an innovative summer school programme aimed at giving adult learners creative and historic experiences.

Taking place this July and August, the mostly five-day courses cover a diverse range of subjects including British art, local history, architecture, exploring creativity, and creative writing.

All but one of the courses, which have been chosen to reflect diverse subject interests, are based at the university's Salomons mansion campus situated in 36 acres of parkland near Tunbridge Wells.

The land is also home to a museum that celebrates the history of the Salomons family.

It includes information on Sir David Salomons, the first Jewish Lord Mayor of London and a founder of the London and Westminster Bank.

He was also the first Jew to speak in the House of Commons and a campaigner for equal rights for people of all faiths.

En-suite single accommodation is available for students but non-residential places are also on offer for most courses.

Prices start from £325 and courses include meals and refreshments with plenty of time for everyone to relax and enjoy their surroundings.

Pub games in the spotlight as students tackle live TV

BROADCAST media students at the University for the Creative Arts filmed a gameshow at Maidstone television studios.

The show – called Pub Game – is the brainchild of student Dylan Cox and involves contestants taking part in a series of tasks in front of a live studio audience.

Students from the university's BA (Hons) creative theatre and film course were also involved in the project, applying the skills learned on their course to the staging and production of the show.

Simon Welsford, senior lecturer for broadcast media, was delighted with how well his students took to the task.

He said: "The recording of the show went extremely well and there was a fantastic atmosphere in the audience. The students really achieved the 'Friday night in the pub' feeling they were aiming for."

Audience participation was essential to the show, and our audience was taken from two local competing pubs.

"Being based at Maidstone Studios and using their facilities in this way is an excellent professional grounding for our students.

"Employability is a key aim of the course, and the opportunities for work placement and professional contacts give our students an enviable advantage." Show creator Dylan Cox added: "Broadcast media at Maidstone Studios has bridged the gap between education and work-based learning.

"Being based in a professional TV studio made all the difference in planning and making our production."

Places are still available on the foundation degree broadcast media course which starts next January.

Key study topics covered include research script-writing, media strategy, narrative and genre, direction, as-live studio production in front of a live audience, fiction adaptation, work placement and major production.

Upon successful completion of the course, students have the opportunity to progress to the one-year BA (Hons) broadcast media.

The degree is delivered at Maidstone Studios alongside the making of professional productions, and is taught by broadcast media professionals with extensive industry contacts.

Apply online at www.ucreative.ac.uk or visit www.youtube.com/UCAFBCastMedia to view productions by students already on the course.

Adult learning workshop to help identify the teachers of tomorrow

MEDWAY Adult and Community Learning Service is running a free workshop for people interested in joining its team of staff.

Those who attend next month's session in Rochester will learn more about what it takes to become an adult education teacher, including routes into the job, and advice on what qualities make a successful teacher.

The workshop will also help attendants identify personal training, subject knowledge, study skills and training options.

Medway Adult and Community Learning Service manager Sue Hopkins said: "Adult learning is an integral part of community development, and interest in adult learning and the many ways in which it can take place is always high."

"If you have the skills to teach I would encourage you to attend this free seminar.

"It could be two hours that change your life."

The free workshop takes place at the Rochester Community Hub, Eastgate, from 5-7pm on Thursday, June 23.

Places are limited and allocated on a first-come first-served basis.

Call 01634 338476 to book and for more information.

Alternatively visit www.mawls.com to find out more about the service and to download a full list of the courses on offer in Medway this year.

CORPORATE CONTRACTS OFFICER (FINANCIALS)

Shepway District Council is creating a new and exciting role to make sure that professional financial support and robust contract management is in place so that value for money, quality and risk are effectively managed to ensure that we get best outcomes for our residents.

The successful applicant will be working with the Corporate Contracts Manager to monitor the council's contracts. This post will be the lead finance support in the newly created Client Unit. The post holder should have experience of using financial modelling tools to assist with business decisions. The main responsibility will be that of compliance, working across the organisation with clients, public sector partners and contractors in ensuring that they are delivering to high standards against agreed service level agreements and contract requirements.

The responsibilities of the Client Unit will increase over time and this is an ideal time for an individual with the necessary experience looking for a new challenge to join the council.

Candidates may have public sector experience but the value that they can bring in modern, flexible and effective contract management as well as outstanding relationship management will be of more interest. A financial qualification, minimum AAT or equivalent, is essential to undertake complex financial modelling and knowledge of either human resources/payroll or housing services is desirable.

KENT COUNTY COUNCIL

(SPEED LIMITS) ORDER 2011

ROAD TRAFFIC REGULATION ACT 1984

Notice is hereby given that the KENT COUNTY COUNCIL proposes to make the above named Order under section 84(1), (2) of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984, (hereinafter called "the Act") and of all other enabling powers, and after consultation with the chief officer of police in accordance with paragraph 20 of Part III of Schedule 9 to the Act,

The effect of the Order will be to remove a section of the existing 40 mph speed limit from the northern boundary of a property named Churchfields, for a distance of approximately 950 metres in a southwards direction, which will by virtue of a system of street lighting set less than 183 metres apart, automatically impose restricted road status (30mph) on this length of the Ashford Road (A28) St Michaels, Tenterden.

A copy of the proposed Order, statement of the Council's reasons for proposing to make the Order, a map indicating the location and the effect and a copy of any other Orders which will be amended by the proposed Order may be examined at the Council Offices of Ashford Borough Council, Civic Centre, Tannery Lane, Kent and at Kent County Council, Sessions House, Maidstone during normal opening times.

If you wish to offer support for or object to the proposed Order you should send your grounds for your observations in writing to the Transport and Development Manager Kent Highway Services, Ashford Highway Depot, Javelin Way, Henwood Industrial Estate, Ashford, TN24 8AD or by email to tdeastkent@kent.gov.uk by 12 noon on 27th June 2011

CHURCH ROAD, ASHFORD (PROHIBITION OF DRIVING) TEMPORARY ORDER 2011

THE ROAD TRAFFIC REGULATION ACT 1984 AS AMENDED BY THE ROAD TRAFFIC (TEMPORARY RESTRICTIONS) ACT 1991

Because of carriageway and footway improvement works, Kent County Council has made an Order prohibiting through traffic on Church Road, Ashford, on or after 6 June 2011 for up to 3 weeks or until the works have been completed.

The road will be closed between the junctions with Queen Street and Norwood Street.

The alternative route is via A292 Elwick Road, Bank Street and Tufton Street.

The One-way Traffic Order in respect of Church Road between Norwood Street and Tufton Street, and the No Right Turn Order from Tufton Street into Church Road, will be suspended to allow access up to the point of closure.

THE KENT COUNTY COUNCIL (OLANTIGH ROAD, WYE, ASHFORD) (SPEED LIMIT) ORDER 2011

ROAD TRAFFIC REGULATION ACT 1984

Notice is hereby given that the KENT COUNTY COUNCIL proposes to make the above named Order under section 84(1), (2) of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984, (hereinafter called "the Act") and of all other enabling powers, and after consultation with the chief officer of police in accordance with paragraph 20 of Part III of Schedule 9 to the Act.

The effect of the proposed Order would be to extend the existing 30mph speed limit in Olantigh Road, for a distance approximately 65 metres in a north easterly direction, to the northern boundary of a property named Middlefield Cottage.

A copy of the proposed Order, statement of the Council's reasons for proposing to make the Order, a map indicating the location and the effect and a copy of any other Orders which will be amended by the proposed Order may be examined at the Council Offices of Ashford Borough Council, Civic Centre, Tannery Lane, Kent and at Kent County Council, Sessions House, Maidstone during normal opening times.

If you wish to offer support for or object to the proposed Order you should send your grounds for your observations in writing to the Transport and Development Manager Kent Highway Services, Ashford Highway Depot, Javelin Way, Henwood Industrial Estate, Ashford, TN24 8AD or by email to tdeastkent@kent.gov.uk by 12 noon on Monday 27th June 2011.

PROW - City of Canterbury*NOTICE OF CONFIRMATION OF MODIFICATION ORDER*WILDLIFE AND COUNTRYSIDE ACT 1981*DEFINITIVE MAP AND STATEMENT FOR THE FORMER EXCLUDED AREA OF WHITSTABLE*THE KENT COUNTY COUNCIL (PUBLIC FOOTPATH CWX41 AT WHITSTABLE)*DEFINITIVE MAP MODIFICATION ORDER 2011

On 24th May 2011 the Kent County Council confirmed the above Order without modifications.

The effect of the Order as confirmed is to modify the Definitive Map and Statement for the area by adding a Footpath (CWX41) which commences on Green Lane and runs in a northerly direction for 55 metres before turning in a north-easterly direction and continuing for 44 metres to its connection with Harwich Street (Between the points A and B on the Order Plan). The path has a width of 0.9 metres at its entrance from Green Lane and widens to 1.2 metres for the first 55 metres, the path widens to 1.4 metres for the remaining 44 metres. The route then narrows at its connection with Harwich Street to 0.9 metres due to a lampost on the route.

All distances are approximate, all directions are general.

A copy of the Order as confirmed and Map may be seen free of charge during office hours at the offices of Canterbury City Council, Military Road, Canterbury, Kent, CT1 1YW or at the Kent County Council, Countryside Access Service, Invicta House, County Hall, Maidstone, Kent ME14 1XX. Copies of the Order and map may also be purchased there.

This Order became operative as from 24th May 2011 but if a person aggrieved by the Order desires to question the validity thereof or of any provision contained therein on the grounds that it is not within the powers of Section 53(3)(c)(i) of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981, or that any of the requirements of Schedule 15 to the Act have not been complied with in relation to the confirmation of the Order, he may, under Paragraph 12 of Schedule 15 to the Act, within 42 days from 5th June 2011 make application for the purpose to the High Court.

MARK Thomas has never been afraid to tackle authority. Whether it be taking on the aristocracy for avoiding tax, or getting under the skin of the arms trade, his campaigning comedy sets him apart.

His latest project led him to one of the most conflict-ridden areas of the world, the separation barrier that encloses the Palestinian West Bank from Israel.

He said: "It's part of my curiosity about things. All walls eventually become walking paths, whether it is the Great Wall of China or Hadrian's Wall, so in a way it was an act of English subversion in treating a wall just like a footpath rather than a military barrier."

Building of the barricade started in 2002, after the second intifada [uprising], when there was a rise in conflict between Israel and Palestine. In places it is a high concrete wall; in others it is a broad barbed-wired gully.

Thomas said: "I was shocked by the brutality of it. You cannot underestimate the effect it has on people's lives and their human rights. It's about life and death."

The route of the wall has been predictably controversial. Land has been acquired by Israel, including illegal settlements created by extreme Israelis who want to live in the West Bank.

Thomas said: "It takes 9 per cent of land from the West Bank. It was put up because of public pressure and the suicide bombings that were happening at the time. Originally, Ariel Sharon, the then-prime minister of Israel, didn't want to build it. If you put up a wall, you create a boundary; if you create a boundary, then you give up on the idea of the West Bank being part of Israel, but public pressure was enormous."

Palestinians who want to cross the line either to work in Israel or for health treatment have to go through designated checkpoints, sometimes many miles from their home.

"It takes water and land and effectively turns the area into a series of campsites and destroys any future of a Palestinian state," said Thomas.

But despite all the arguments and violence, the barrier is a place of contrasts.

Thomas said: "The place itself is incredibly beautiful, with strangers who stop you and insist on feeding you. It was like being mugged but being given things."

However, there were times on the journey when the comedian came under attack from both sides.

He said: "At one time we got stoned, and that was terrifying as we got caught in a gully. Then we got covered in tear gas and we did worry that we may be jailed."

Thomas and his group were detained seven times by the Israeli authorities during his nine-week journey.

He said: "You can never read the situation on the ground. We were walking past one checkpoint and a soldier says 'Oi! Are you from London? I'm from Golders Green – come on you Arsenal'. You just think, what was that about?"

For Israelis the wall has brought greater safety, with suicide bombings down by 90 per cent, but it also creates huge discontent.

Thomas said: "My Israeli friends said after the second intifada no one cares – Israeli activists against the wall are in a minority."

"There are some people who worry about the economic effects of the wall. I met a council leader in Jenin who wants to set up an industrial zone. He recognises the economic consequences International says the movement economy, don't the wall has. The Monetary Fund restriction of destroys the but most Israelis care about the humiliation it has on Palestinians."

Picture: IDIL SUKAN

While on the walk, Thomas witnessed Israeli settlers creating illegal outposts in the West Bank.

He said: "Under Israeli law, outposts are illegal, but they still get telephone lines, sewage systems, electricity, water and protection from soldiers.

"Palestinians are obviously fearful of outposts because once they are set up it means there will be soldiers and it will bring a whole lot of oppression into that immediate area."

Thomas has turned his experiences into his latest show, Extreme Rambling (Walking The Wall).

He said: "There were some very intense incidents, but you just have to tell the stories and keep to the truthfulness of those experiences. Things like standing next to a mime artist when I got to one point on the wall just write themselves."

But Thomas is realistic enough to know that there will be no quick solution to the situation.

He said: "There are seeds of optimism, although sometimes it is difficult to see it. One thing is for certain, things will change. There are protest movements and community groups and even amazing Israeli activists themselves. I was struck by the moral courage they have and the growth of non-violent movements against it."

"Israel is very frightened of the prospect of an international-sanctions campaign. I think that would be a good non-violent way to challenge the oppression of the occupation."

And how does the 48-year-old feel about now being better known for his campaigning and political activism than being a comic?

"I want to look at different things. The idea that I would just get good at a certain kind of stand-up and just keep doing it is too boring. For me it is not just a question of coming up with good gags – it also means coming up with interesting ways of working."

■ Extreme Ramblings is at the Hazlitt Theatre, Maidstone, on Friday, June 10, (phone 01622 758 611) and at the Trinity Theatre, Tunbridge Wells, on Wednesday June 22 (phone 01892 678678).

THE GOVERNMENT'S, now abandoned, plans to sell-off public forests sparked widespread protests and fears that access to much-loved woodland would be lost. More than half a million people signed a Save Our Forests petition run by the campaign group 38 Degrees and the embarrassing U-turn for the Conservative-led coalition was labelled a victory for 'people power'.

The Independent Panel on Forestry was set up to advise the Government on the future of forests and woods in England and is coming to Kent on September 16, as part of a number of visits to different sites across the country including the Forest of Dean.

The panel is yet to reveal which forests in Kent will receive a visit, but a spokeswoman said it would be looking at how smaller woods, with a mix of different trees, contribute to the wider natural landscape.

People have been urged to come forward and share their views on the future of more than 250,000 acres of public forests before the panel reports back in April next year.

Malcolm Dove, secretary of the Friends of Bedgebury National Pinetum, said the group would be getting involved with the consultation.

"We would hope to meet them when they come to Kent so we can explain our different circumstances to most other sites in Kent."

"Essentially we are an arboretum, a museum of trees, therefore we need substantial support from the Government just like all museums."

"Although the site itself may not take money it is a valuable asset to the world and the country. It must be kept on and not sold off."

Bedgebury, near Goudhurst, has been managed by the Forestry Commission since 1925. Mr Dove said he hoped the panel would come to Bedgebury during their visit to the county.

The panel is chaired by the Bishop of Liverpool, James Jones, and includes the chief executives of the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds (RSPB), Dr Mike Clarke; the Ramblers' Tom Franklin; and The Wildlife Trust's, Stephanie Hilborne.

Bishop James said: "There is no doubt that people care deeply about the forests and their future."

"This subject has touched a nerve with the public and part of the panel's work is to understand why. I therefore urge you to use this opportunity and share your thoughts, ideas and feelings with us. It is crucial we listen to everyone to whom this matters because ultimately this is a conversation that should involve us all."

Steve Wheatley, site manager at Tudeley Woods, which has been run by the RSPB for the past 26 years, said he thought that people's biggest concern about the sell-off was access.

He said: "I think probably that issue was a big thing for people because they were worried they would lose access to these places."

"We get visitors here to the woods who come back from a long walk and say they loved it, but didn't see any birds, but they heard them, which is common in dense woodland."

"They just like the fact the wildlife is there and enjoy the lovely walks."

"People like the ability to go out and appreciate a big wilderness area. Although it is perceived as a wilderness the reality is that it is all managed. It is the fear of loss of experience."

Mr Wheatley said he thought the RSPB was well placed to manage ancient woodland like Tudeley. A lot of their recent work at the site has been coppicing and creating spaces to attract butterflies and other wildlife.

The decline of woodland management, such as coppicing, has been blamed for species such as pearl-bordered fritillaries, which have now been reintroduced at Tudeley, becoming extinct in

"At Tudeley we get about 10,000 visitors a year, which is quite low because there are not really the facilities there compared to some sites like Bedgebury that gets a vast number of visitors," he said.

"We are just about to enter a new management agreement with the Hadlow estate which will mean we can start a new phase of investment in the trails and walks."

"We are hoping to see wider use and numbers going up considerably over the next few years."

"I think the RSPB is providing places both for wildlife and for people."

"We can really focus on that side of things to engage people with the wildlife."

He added: "The RSPB is supported by a million members' extra resources to plough into a reserve, while the Forestry Commission is bound by its public funding at a time when everyone's pockets are being pinched."

"Our chief executive (Dr Mike Clarke) is involved on the panel so we are very well represented. The RSPB is very much in favour of this review."

Asked if he welcomed the review by the independent panel, Bedgebury's Mr Dove added: "Yes, but I'm not happy they are still thinking of selling-off Forestry Commission land. At least this is not the bulk sell-off that was proposed originally and they are going to think and listen to the findings."

Forestry Commission sites in Kent also include Hemsted, near Benenden, Clowes Wood in Canterbury and King's Wood near Ashford.

The panel said it wants to receive the widest range of views whether you are a dog walker, environmentalist, forestry worker, commercial forest owner, cyclist or horserider.

RED SAILS: Documentary charts the history of the Thames barge and those who worked on them

Film celebrates vital role played by barges

By Ed Hill

ed.hill@archant.co.uk

IT'S hard to believe it now but there was an age when commodities like bricks, hay, wheat, stone and coal were transported not up and down the noisy pollution filled motorways of the county but along its coast and rivers.

The workhorse of this trade was not a horse at all but a boat. The Thames sailing barge was a product of hundreds of years of experimentation and evolution, meaning tonnes of heavy cargo could be delivered up and down the South East by a crew of two men and a dog.

This environmentally friendly form of transport relied on wind and tide to navigate from the ports of the South East coast into the heart of the city of London and as far as Europe. The barges were commercially operating as late as 1970.

Now a Faversham filmmaker is making a documentary about the history of the Thames Barge and of the industries and men that it helped to employ.

Michael Maloney moved to Faversham in 2001 and now lives by Faversham Creek. It is a fortunate time to be making a film about the Thames Barge as at the same time the last commercially trading vessel, the Cambria, has been restored at the town's Standard Quay.

Mr Maloney said: "We want to make this film so we can send it to schools as well as museums and shops. The seven and eight-year-olds of today will be the next big decision makers of tomorrow. In this day and age it seems amazing to realise that the barges produced absolutely no pollution, and used natural energy sources such as the wind and tides to achieve their task.

"Our local economies were totally reliant on these craft to transport our agricultural produce and manufactured goods all over the country.

"They were way ahead of their time they were the pioneers in re-usable energy and low carbon philosophy."

Mr Maloney already has a history of enlightening people about their local past.

Two years ago he completed a film called A Sideways Launch about the history of the Pollock Shipyard in Faversham.

Between 1916 and 1969 more than 1,200 ships were built by the yard on the creek, then launched sideways into the narrow waterway to ply their trade around the world.

He said: "We found all this old footage that had been kept by the caretaker of the yard. We managed to get a grant from the UK film council to transfer it all to video tape and then decided to make it into a film that would show local people a part of its past that many of them know very little about."

The culmination of the project was a screening of the film at Faversham's Royal Cinema in front of more than 500 people and a DVD that has been sold in museums and shops to many people.

He has also completed a project 'A Dream of Flight' showing the historical role that the Isle of Sheppey and Leysdown had in the pioneering days of British aviation.

Mr Maloney hopes his new film, Red Sails, will have much the same impact for the Thames Sailing Barge.

He has interviewed some of the last men to sail the barges commercially and has compiled archive footage showing the barges in their heyday and the other industries such as agriculture and brick making that they were a part of.

The title comes from the distinctive colour of the barges' canvas which was painted with red ochre and fish oil to help preserve them.

As well as looking at the history of the barge, the film also follows the work of the shipwrights and trainees that have been working on the restoration of the Cambria and its launch earlier this year.

However, Mr Maloney now needs sponsors to help him complete the film and he is looking for local people and organisations to sign up.

■ To find out more about the project, view a trailer of the film at www.cwideprods.co.uk/red-sails/

New gastro pub does like to be beside the seaside

THE Hoy on Margate's seafront had been closed for 14 years before April, so it might have seemed a risk for a pub and hotel chain to invest more than £1,000,000 in refurbishing it. However, with the opening of the nearby Turner Contemporary gallery and the long-hoped-for resurgence of the town, Thorer Taverns expects its latest venture will prove an attractive new addition to the Margate's restaurant scene.

Known as the Benjamin Beale when it closed, the pub has been totally refurbished and now sports a bright modern interior.

Co-manager Jamie Porter said: "It was actually called The Hoy before that, so it is reverting to its original name. It's really a gastro pub and different from most of our other sites."

Good food is certainly the main inspiration behind the new project.

Head chef Thom Sommers has been given a free hand to create an interesting and varied menu. The ingredients are all sourced from local producers and, appropriately for a seaside location, fish is a major part of what's on offer.

"It has been a baptism of fire," said Thom. "We had a tight deadline and we only got into the kitchen a few days before we were due to open.

"It was a real push, but it was a good push. It helped us as a team bond together. Luckily, it went really well. We opened in time with the

After 14 years lying derelict, a Margate pub has risen again as The Hoy. Ed Hill savours its new incarnation

ECONOMIES OF SCALE:

The Hoy's head chef, Jamie Porter, above, serves some fish with which not many people are familiar, such as grey mullet

Turner [Contemporary] and we were packed."

Diners can enjoy many classic fish dishes such as scallops and mussels, but the chef is also keen to offer a less well-known local catch.

He said: "I want to serve fish that people are not usually used to eating, like grey mullet or huss [dogfish]. I have found that it has been flying out of the kitchen. These fish have far more flavour than cod and we can get them cheap because they are caught locally."

"At this time of year there is loads of huss around and the fishermen are glad to sell it. If we buy it and serve it, then it is helping them and local fishmongers as well."

"With the grey mullet we can treat it in the same way as sea bass. You can bake it whole, pan-fry it, serve it in a nice risotto with pancetta..."

"As a combined dish, it works out much cheaper than bass. Grey mullet is around half the price, so that means I can price it lower for our customers."

Bromley

SITUATED in the busy pedestrian area of Bromley high street between the Churchill Theatre and Elmfield Road, this popular farmers' market is combined with an arts and craft market and is open every Friday and Saturday from 9am-5pm.

Cliftonville

CLIFTONVILLE farmers' market was established in 2001 by the Cliftonville Residents' Association. It is run entirely by volunteers. Since then it has been voted three times (2006-2009) Best Farmers' Market in Kent. It is held on the Eastern Esplanade on the last Sunday of the month.

Capel-le-Ferne

CAPEL-LE-FERNE market is held every Tuesday in the village hall. Run by three voluntary members of the main committee, the market is a non-profit-making charity and every penny goes back into the maintenance of the village hall.

Challock

HELD in the Memorial Hall, Challock farmers' market is open from 1pm to 4pm on the first and third Fridays of every month. It offers a selection of locally-produced fruit and vegetables, eggs, cheese, fish, bread, cakes and pies, honey, meats and jams.

Egerton

EGERTON farmers' market has now been trading every Friday from 2pm to 4.30pm for almost five years, with most of the original stall-holders still at the market, which is held in the Millennium Hall and offers local produce including meat, fruit and vegetables.

Rolvenden

ROLVENDEN farmers' market was established in 2000. It is run entirely by volunteers. It takes place every Thursday morning from 10am to midday in the new village hall and St Mary's Church opposite. There are special offers on selected wines and at the moment a friend can dine for free on a Monday.

Judging by the dishes I tasted, like the sailors who crewed the hoy boats after which the pub is named, many people will be navigating their way to this venue.

Quality venues with an accent on relaxation

WHAT could be a better place to enjoy quality time with family and friends than a top-class hotel restaurant in the beautiful surroundings of the Kentish countryside.

As well as taking advantage of some of the excellent food and drink on offer, there is no need to worry about the car – after all, you can stay the night and have a day away from the cares of work or home.

Whether you love the countryside, nature and walking, or whether you like to be close to attractions and shopping, hotel restaurants have something for you.

Here is a selection of excellent venues – all offering something different but with several things in common.

These are excellent customer service, top-class accommodation and wonderful settings. All offer the best-quality produce for your dining pleasure.

Much of it is sourced locally as the county of Kent has some of the finest food and drink available anywhere. Whether it be fruit and vegetables from the fields and orchards, livestock from farms, or fish from the sea, the range on offer is surely unmatched anywhere else in Britain.

So this summer, why not take advantage of the treasures on your doorstep and visit one of the top hotel restaurants which the county is proud to have within its borders?

You will soon realise you do not have to travel far and wide to appreciate and enjoy top-class wining, dining and resting up for the night.

FIND hidden history and breathtaking views over the North Downs on this walk in the heart of the beautiful Medway Valley. You will stroll though peaceful farmland and discover old quarries as this journey transforms your pathway seamlessly from urban to rural.

Leaving the train station behind, you will head into the centre of Snodland. Notice as you walk the mix of buildings, some of which date back to before the 1900s.

Until the 19th century, the village was agricultural. Then industry arrived and land was snapped up to build new cement, brick and paper-making works. Because of these emerging industries, combined with the arrival of the railway, the population had trebled in size by 1881.

Heading towards Birling, you will leave the built-up area of the village and start to notice the transition to rural life.

The route joins the North Downs Way National Trail for a time, as it passes through on its way from Farnham in Surrey to Dover. Much of the trail follows the Pilgrims Way, the legendary route used by pilgrims on their way from Winchester to Canterbury to pray at the shrine of St Thomas Becket.

As you continue walking, the route will take you uphill. Here, take a little time to admire the fantastic view from the top of the downs back to Snodland.

The North Downs cover almost a quarter of Kent, stretching from the White Cliffs at Dover up to the Surrey and London borders.

This is a diverse landscape with dramatic chalk escarpments, secluded valleys, networks of tiny lanes and historic hedgerows, ancient woodlands, traditional orchards, locally-distinctive villages, precious wildlife and many sites of historic and cultural interest.

All these make up a landscape that is such a valuable national asset that the Kent Downs – part of the North Downs – were designated an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty in 1968.

If you would like to enjoy a longer walk you have the option of taking an additional loop around Ladd's Farm, which takes you higher up, passing though beech-yew woodland found along the top of the downs thanks to the underlying chalk below.

As you return to the village, The Bull public house is perfectly placed for a well-deserved refreshment stop.

Location: Snodland, ME6 5AN

Distance: 4.5 miles (7.2km), allow 2-3 hours as there is an optional 2.6-mile (4.2km) extension around Ladd's Farm

OS Explorer Map: 148

Stiles: Three and a set of steps

Terrain: Some paths can become muddy. Parts of the walk, particularly the Ladd's Farm optional extension, are quite steep

Step count: 9,000 or 5,200

Parking: Car parks and on-road parking

GOOD VIEWS: There are many rural delights to be had during a walk around Snodland's countryside

Woodland day Survival skills and nature

Rolvenden primary school

Sunday, June 12
 01580 240104
www.btcv.org.uk

THE British Trust For Conservation Volunteers (BTCV) is running a woodland day at Rolvenden primary school from 10am-4pm. During the day there will be activities for all the family to join, ranging from survival skills, den-building, nature trails, crafts, conservation and creative skills to having a go at tree-measuring, making a bird house, willow-making and much more.

Refreshments and food will be available, including real ales from the local Old Dairy Brewery.

The BTCV supports more than 628,000 people working on more than 29,000 projects each year to improve the environment. Tickets for the woodland day out are £5 per family, including all activities.

Fuse Festival Street drama and theatre

Gillingham and Chatham high streets and Rochester Castle Gardens

Friday to Saturday, June 17-19

THE annual celebration of street theatre, the Fuse Festival, will once again explode on to the roads and parks of Medway. As colourful as ever, the festival is now condensed into one weekend and three locations, giving a huge amount to see and do but staying true to its roots by remaining free to all. Festival chief Dawn Archer said: "This year we've decided to heighten the impact of the action by programming it all into one weekend and three main locations, making it more than ever an event no family should miss." The festival will begin with an Illumination Parade on Gillingham high street on Friday afternoon led by Medway's much-loved puppets.

On the Saturday, Chatham high street will see a whirling kaleidoscope of street art featuring the work of performers like Dizzy O'Dare, Wet Picnic and Bread & Butter Theatre Co. There will be circus-themed fun running throughout the afternoon. Sunday welcomes the return of a bigger and better Big Tea Party, this year in the beautiful setting of Rochester Castle Gardens. Students from London's Central School Of Speech And Drama will perform their own production of Alice In Wonderland.

Screen opera Cinderella and a butterfly

Market Square, Dover

Monday, July 4, and Wednesday, July 13

screening 7.30pm

DOVER people have the chance to see some of the country's best singers on the big screen. The Royal Opera is transmitting its production of Madam Butterfly on Monday, July 4, and Cinderella on Wednesday, July 13, to a screen in Market Square. Whether you're new to opera or already a devotee, the BP Summer Big Screen is an opportunity to enjoy the best from Covent Garden in a unique setting.

The screenings will include exclusive backstage footage, audience interaction and the chance to win tickets to The Royal Ballet's The Nutcracker next season with a night for two at London's May Fair Hotel.

Deborah Bull, creative director at the Royal Opera House, said: "These annual screens are a highlight of our performing season – they allow us to reach new audiences across the UK and offer a unique window on our world through live presentation from behind the scenes."

New play Jealousy and obsession

Memorial Theatre, Broadstairs

Sunday, June 5, 2.30pm
 0845 2626263

THE Sarah Thorne adult drama group returns for its second season in Broadstairs, presenting a new script by local playwright Samuel Pearce.

Friendship gone sour is the theme in his play Justice. Disturbed Richard invites his childhood best friend Ben over one evening to reminisce on the past, but what starts as a friendly reunion quickly descends into a tale of obsession, jealousy and tragedy.

Seats are bookable in advance. The 24-hour booking rule applies to non-members of Sarah Thorne, but seats can be reserved by phone or alternatively by email at info@sarahthorne-theatreclub.co.uk. Tickets cost £7, or £5 for non-members.

at Turner Contemporary, Girl Talk at Theatre Royal and a tantalising line-up of free jazz on Sunday, July 3, at the main stage in the Old Town piazza.

The festival begins at Westcoast with Margate's Christine Tobin and her quartet on Saturday, June 25, performing a tribute to Carol King. She appears in a double bill with jazz singer Cleveland Watkiss and his quartet. Earlier in the day, Watkiss will lead a vocal workshop with 30 young people from Margate – he will prepare them for a special performance on Friday, July 1, as the warm-up to the Sarah Jane Morris Big Band. Concerts will continue throughout July.

Longest day Gardening talk and tea

Sissinghurst Castle
 Tuesday, June 21, 6.30pm
 01580 710700
www.nationaltrust.org.uk

SISINGHURST Castle is the ruins of a 16th-century Elizabethan house, but it is its gardens and woodland areas that attract visitors. And the gardens will feature in an upcoming event at which visitors are invited to supper at the castle, with a talk from head gardener Alexi Datta. Both history and gardening fans are invited to tour the castle grounds, woods, streams and farmland with its views of the countryside. The event takes place on the longest day of the year and is followed by a two-course meal in the Granary restaurant and a question-and-answer session. A seat will cost National Trust members £36 and non-members £46.

Tribute band Pink Floyd perfection

Hazlitt Theatre, Maidstone
 Sunday, June 12
 Phone 01622 758611
www.hazlittartscentre.co.uk

PINK Floyd tribute band Perfect Alibi have been in existence for more than 20 years. Initially performing as a covers band in pubs and clubs across southern England playing music by progressive rock bands of the 1970s and 80s such as Genesis, Yes, Pink Floyd and Marillion, in 1999 they were asked to perform a Pink Floyd-only show... and the rest is history.

After a brief hiatus to find a new frontman, Alan Robertson, the band are back on the road again and looking forward to a busy year. Robertson, who hails from Scotland, has settled on the south coast and become an integral member of the band. Perfect Alibi have a dedicated following and no fewer than five headlining appearances at the prestigious Southampton Guildhall under their belt. They are now looking to build their reputation among a wider audience. The band say they are dedicated to create the ultimate musical and visual Floyd experience; featuring the outstanding Dave Blake on lead guitar, they perform a selection of more than 50 tracks, from the second album A Saucerful Of Secrets through to their last studio album The Division Bell. There will be a large light show, lasers and projections. Tickets £15, concessions £13.

Jazz concert Trudy Kerr joins the club

Folkestone Jazz Club, Tower Theatre
 Thursday, June 16, 8.30pm
 01303 277175

AUSTRALIAN jazz singer Trudy Kerr is bringing her all star trio to Folkestone. Kerr is from the east coast of Australia, where she and her good friend Ingrid James made a big name for themselves in the jazz clubs of Brisbane, the Gold Coast and Sydney. Hailed as "one of the country's most polished singers" by The Times, Kerr moved to London in 1990 and, while continuing to gig regularly, worked during the day as secretary for clarinettist Acker Bilk.

She took time out to study jazz at the Guildhall School of Music and in 1995 got her career break when Ronnie Scott offered her a week at his club.

She has performed regularly at the famous Soho jazzerie ever since. She is also a jazz tutor and co-director of a record company. She has just made her ninth album. Her trio comprises Robin Aspland, one of the UK's top jazz pianists, who has accompanied such singers as Dame Cleo Laine; Geoff Gascoyne on double bass; and drummer Sebastiaan de Krom. The Folkestone show starts at 8.30pm and tickets are priced at £10.

Art exhibition Woods for the trees

Ashford town centre
 Throughout June and July
www.cathystreeter.co.uk/revealingashford.html

A NEW community art-installation welcomes the woodland to the streets. In a project that will grow over the next few months as part of the Revealing Ashford arts festival, drawings and prints of trees have been appearing in locations around the town. Ashford was historically known as Essentesford, which is believed to mean "ash trees growing near a ford". To celebrate the town's leafy roots, the arts project Can't See The Woods For The Trees, run by local artist Cathy Streeter, will see woodland repopulating the town through the creativity of local residents and businesses. You can create your own tree by visiting Streeter's website and downloading a tree silhouette, along with tips on how to create your own tree display. Other ways to get involved include a drop-in workshop at County Square shopping centre lower mall on Saturday, June 11, from 10am-4pm and visiting The Art Room Gallery's tree-themed exhibition from Thursday, June 21.

Victorian epic at the castle Cranford

Hever Castle, Edenbridge
Tuesday, June 21, 8pm
01522 569777
www.chapterhouse.org

CHAPTERHOUSE Theatre brings the classic novel Cranford to Hever Castle's Festival Theatre stage. As part of the open-air garden-theatre tour, Elizabeth Gaskell's work will be transformed into a stage play, transporting drama fans back to the sleepy Victorian town. Laura Turner's new adaptation will bring the dramas of life in the countryside to Hever as part of the national celebrations of Gaskell's bicentenary. The Festival Theatre has tiered seating and shelter in case of bad weather. Tickets are priced at £16.50. The show will also be performed at Danson House, Bexleyheath, on Thursday, July 28.

Jazz trio Spillet, Barnes and Waterman

RAF Association Club, Dock Road, Chatham
Friday, June 17, 8.30pm
01634 845523

THREE of the UK's top jazz musicians are teaming up for a jam session in partnership with the Royal Air Force Association Club in Chatham. Reed-player and multi-award-winner Alan Barnes came to fame with the Humphrey Lyttelton Band in the 1980s. Since those days he has achieved an awesome reputation, performing at such venues as the Blue Note clubs of New York and Tokyo. Second star Steve Waterman is professor of jazz trumpet at the Royal Academy Of Music and Trinity College Of Music and is another internationally-acclaimed musician. He frequently plays in Havana, Cuba, with a 25-piece big band. Waterman has also been recording and leading his own quintets, nonettes and big bands for more than 25 years. Tenor-man Simon Spillet won the rising-star award in 2007 and since then his blistering performances and albums have won him more acclaim. Critics have likened him to the legendary Tubby Hayes. Admission costs £10.

Anniversary Look Back In Anger

Trinity Theatre, Tunbridge Wells
Thursday, June 9, 7.30pm
01892 678678

MARKING the 55th anniversary of John Osborne's seminal play Look Back In Anger, the Creative Cow theatre company will be bringing its production to Tunbridge Wells. Look Back In Anger was first performed in the 1950s, with its raw realism making Osborne's name. He soon became known as the original 'angry young man'.

Creative Cow chief Katherine Senior said: "We're doing this play because it's an iconic classic of British theatre. "Audiences are in for an evening of real, no-holds-barred theatre, with the added interest of seeing the play from a perspective of 55 years on. "As a company, we have done a range of classic plays from the 60s.

"That decade introduced a rich seam of chamber plays to the English stage – something that was important for us when we started as there were only three of us.

"But we've kept going back to the 1960s, and now the 1950s, because post-war writing was just so good."

The play is directed by Amanda Knott, whose impressive credits include posts at the Theatre Royal, Plymouth, and assistant director at the Royal Shakespeare Company. Tickets are priced at £14 (£12 concessions).

Pantomime Widdy signs to Dartford

Orchard Theatre, Dartford
From Friday, December 9
www.orchardtheatre.co.uk
01322 220 000

ANN Widdecombe has signed up to join Craig Revel Horwood in Snow White And The Seven Dwarfs at The Orchard Theatre, Dartford, at Christmas time. This will be her first panto appearance, playing Widdy In Waiting to Craig's Wicked Queen. No doubt the pair will re-create some of the banter we enjoyed when Horwood was judging her abilities on last year's Strictly Come Dancing.

The pair join the pantomime fold after becoming a huge hit on the Strictly Come Dancing national tour. Ann said: "Craig and I have had enormous fun on the tour of the show and I am sure we can make that fun infectious during the run of Snow White."

Comedian Reginald D Hunter

Hazlitt Theatre, Maidstone
Thursday, June 16, 8pm
01622 758 611
www.hazlittartscentre.co.uk

TELEVISION-PANEL star Reginald D Hunter is heading to the Hazlitt this month as part of his UK-wide tour. A regular on BBC's satire mainstays Have I Got News For You and Mock The Week, Hunter has become far more well known in this country than back in his native United States. He has a distinctive take on life, often describing the differences between similar aspects of British and American living. In just over a decade, Hunter has managed to carve his own niche and has come a long way from Albany, Georgia, where he was born. Described as brutally honest, controversial and meticulous in delivery, the one-liner machine has the attributes and the stage to become one of the all-time comedy greats. Tickets cost £15 each.

Edward II

By Seymour Phillips

Yale University Press, £25

EDWARD II (1284-1327). King of England, Lord of Ireland and Duke of Aquitaine, was the subject of ignominy during his lifetime... and his reputation has only worsened.

Ever since his particularly grisly murder in the dungeons of Berkeley Castle in 1327, his reign has been regarded as an embarrassment to the noble royal tradition.

Not only was it one of fruitless civil war, but Edward was also thought to have been gay and a poor judge of character who doted on his favourites before being killed by a red-hot poker thrust into his behind.

Yet here is a work that argues that the unlamented sovereign was actually "not fundamentally different from most of his predecessors and successors on the throne".

This definitive biography does not present Edward II as a heroic or successful king – his deposition after a turbulent reign of almost 20 years is proof enough that it went wrong. The royal person himself does not come over very well, but it's difficult not to feel sorry for someone who had a horrible death and has been vilified for centuries.

Seymour Phillips's acute examination of a mass of sources shows that a richer picture emerges, in line with the complexity of events, the man and the torrid times in which he lived.

If Edward II was not a successful king, he was not different in many ways to most English monarchs, the book argues. It ensures that a full account of the problems he faced in England, Scotland and Ireland and in his relations with France is presented.

It also tackles the suggestion that he did not die in 1327 but lived on as a captive in England and then a wanderer on the Continent – an enticing early conspiracy theory.

Almost 700 years on, King Edward has at last found someone to champion him.

Haunted Rochester

By Neil Arnold and Kevin Payne

The History Press, £9.99

FOREVER associated with former resident Charles Dickens, historic Rochester is riddled with tales of ghostly monks, eerie tunnels, dark deeds, apparitions and other spectres and spooks.

Paranormal investigator Neil Arnold has teamed up with Kevin Payne to write a book that shows Rochester is in fact one of the most haunted places in Britain.

Its high street alone harbours more than 40 ghost stories. And the town is notable for some of the stranger tales – woods housing a giant rabbit and a voodoo priestess called the Reggae Woman. There are even reports of "half a ghost" being seen along Love Lane.

Slightly more orthodox tales feature Restoration House, the building that Dickens used as a model for the home of tragic Miss Havisham.

Camp Z The Secret Life Of Rudolf Hess

By Stephen McGinty

Quercus, £18.99

On May 10, 1941, Rudolf Hess, then the Deputy Fuhrer, parachuted over Renfrewshire in Scotland on a mission to meet the Duke of Hamilton, ostensibly to broker a peace deal with the British government. But why? What on Earth did he think he was going to achieve?

Hess's actions are one of the more unusual aspects of the Second World War and in Camp Z: The Secret Life Of Rudolf Hess author Stephen McGinty provides some answers and insight. After being held in the Tower of London, Hess was transferred to Mytchett Place in Hampshire under the codename of Z.

The house was fitted with microphones and sound-recording equipment, guarded by a battalion of soldiers and codenamed Camp Z. McGinty says Camp Z is a "locked room mystery" where the locked room is a man's head, and information that could help change the course of the Second World War lies inside a mind which no one can work out is sane or insane. Hess was given a life sentence at the Nuremberg Trials, and from 1966 to his death in 1987 aged 93 he was the sole inmate at Spandau prison until his eventual death by suicide.

and goes a long way towards answering some of the many riddles around his actions.

Smut

By Alan Bennett

Profile Books, £12

A WIDOW, tired of her stifling upper-middle-class lifestyle, finds her outlook much improved when she is introduced to the world of voyeurism by two students, while elsewhere a secretly gay married man finds himself blackmailed by a policeman as his wife carries on an affair with his father.

It's not the usual territory wit for national treasure Alan Bennett, but it is a delight seeing how events unfold in the two short stories featured in this pint-sized volume.

Anyone familiar with his previous work, such as Talking Heads, should be well aware of what to expect.

Smut is as funny, profound and insightful as his back catalogue, and the vaguely-improbable plots are treated with a typically aloof, dry wit.

Tribute act Michael Buble fever in the air

Woodville Halls, Gravesend

Thursday, June 23, 8pm
www.gravesham.gov.uk
01474 337774

LOCK up your wives and girlfriends because Michael Buble fever hits Gravesend's Woodville Halls this month. The top Buble tribute act Rickie Arthur and his seven-piece band will be causing hysteria as the look-a-like and sound-a-like performs the crooner's favourite hits. Arthur has worked hard to capture every gesture and mannerism of the heartthrob so fans can experience almost the real thing. He said: "I'm really looking forward to coming to Gravesend. I've got a live band performing on stage with me which really creates an authentic experience for the audience. I'm becoming more and more like Michael the more shows I do. Some people can't believe how much I resemble him."

Arthur performs songs such as Just Haven't Met You Yet and Crazy Little Thing Called Love. Tickets cost £17.50 for adults.

A NEW festival aimed at school-leavers has been announced. The First Days Of Freedom marks the beginning of summer and also the start of life beyond education. Three nights of parties and celebrations for thousands of school- and college-leavers has been promoted largely through Facebook. The gig will feature such acts as Professor Green, Mystery Jets and BBC DJ Zane Lowe, right.

The Fairy Jobmother doles out her magic in work hunt

The Fairy Jobmother

Tuesdays, 9pm, Channel Four

ON The Apprentice, a bunch of would-be entrepreneurs are currently battling it out to give 110 per cent and prove they have what it takes to go into business with Alan Sugar.

But for a lot people, a dream job doesn't have to involve working side by side with a grumpy multi-millionaire. They would just like something that gives them a reason to get up in the morning, puts some money in their pockets and gets them off benefits.

And that's where The Fairy Jobmother, also known as Hayley Taylor, comes to the rescue.

In this new series, she'll be visiting four unemployment hot-spots across the UK to help people who are reliant on benefits to find jobs.

The first episode finds her in Bootle, Merseyside, where more than a quarter of work-age residents are claiming out-of-work benefits.

One of those subjects is 53-year-old Dave Lonorgan, who has been unemployed for almost two years after being laid off from his job as a security guard. His 21-year-old daughter Louise has also been claiming benefits since leaving school at 16. Both are hoping that Taylor can help them find work.

"Some view me as bullying people back into work and of being in collaboration with the powers-that-be to reduce the unemployment figures. They couldn't be further from the truth," said Taylor.

With the biggest benefits -hake up since the 1940s, the Government is bringing in tough new measures to make sure all those who can work do work. But just how easy will it be to take people who have become reliant on benefits and prepare them for the world of work?

Also featured this week are Sue McArd, 31, a lone parent who has been on benefits since the birth of her daughter six years ago, and 27-year-old expectant father Alex Foster, who has struggled to find work since dropping out of police training four years ago.

HELP: Fairy Jobmother Hayley Taylor visits unemployment hot-spots in Britain to weave her magic

Will Mellor stars in new 2.4 Children-style sitcom

A NEW series on the BBC always comes with a certain expectation. There have been some crackers over the years, with The Office and the Alan Partrdge series standing out. However, neither of them featured BBC journeyman sitcom-actor Will Mellor. Best known for his roles in Casualty and the truly appalling Two Pints Of Lager And A Packet Af Crisps, Mellor again dips into the comedy market with In With The Flyns. Mancunian 30-something couple Liam and

In With The Flyns

Wednesdays, 8.30pm, BBC One

Caroline Flynn are struggling to hold down jobs and raise their three children – mostly because they're still growing up themselves. The couple are desperate to treat their offspring to a proper holiday – one that involves sun, sea and sand, rather than a damp caravan park. However, this means they need to work extra shifts to earn the necessary money.

Unfortunately, being away from home for longer hours means their children are left to their own devices: teenage Chloe gets a piercing, while sons Mikey and Steve eat from bins and confront a bully. Many would not normally go for this type of show, but with the BBC overdue to come up with another piece of genius, you never know what you might find unless you give it a try. Just don't hold your breath for any considerable length of time.

REAL: The plight of Borneo's orang-utans in view

Orang-utans dying for a $10 reward

Unreported World: Indonesia

Friday, June 10, 7.30pm, Channel Four

REPORTER Aidan Hartley travels to Indonesia to highlight the work of young environmental activists battling to save endangered species such as orang-utans and sea turtles. They visit a vast market where critically-endangered animals are sold as pets or for the Chinese medicine trade and uncover allegations of corruption and harassment of the campaigners.

The island of Borneo in Indonesia has one of the planet's last big forests, but every hour an area the size of three football pitches is cut down to be used for palm-oil production.

The Unreported World team joins a group of local environmentalists who are trying to rescue the orang-utan, which, because of the loss of its habitat, is heading for extinction.

They arrive at a rescue operation for orang-utans that have been kept illegally by local people as pets.

The chief tells Hartley that the loss of forest has brought people into conflict with orang-utans. It is also discovered that some palm-oil farmers see orang-utans as vermin, with local people collecting a $10 reward when they bring in an orang-utan's head or severed hand.

He says the few infants that are spared end up in cages or are sold as pets in private zoos across Asia, and that middle-men can pay just US$25 to a poacher or plantation-worker for a baby orang-utan which, if smuggled to Thailand, is worth about US$25,000.

At a rehabilitation centre for orang-utans, another activist called Hardi says his work has exposed corruption and criminal networks involved in the wildlife trade and brought him into conflict with the authorities.

The group investigates claims that the authorities are not interested in saving orang-utans and that their objective is to see the establishment of more palm-oil plantations.

OFF FURNITURE
at Nasons

For full minimum spend and terms of conditions of this offer go to nasons.co.uk/special-offers

OUR TOP FIVE

1 Win win (15) Mike Flaherty (Paul Giamatti) is struggling to survive in the harsh economic climate. He thinks his prayers have been answered when he agrees to act as legal guardian to elderly client Leo (Burt Young), who has early Alzheimer's - a role which brings in a monthly stipend of 1,500 dollars. Matters become complicated when Leo's grandson Kyle (Alex Shaffer) turns up, having run away.

2 Pirates of the Caribbean: On Stranger Tides (12A) Johnny Depp hoists the mainsail once again. This time, Jack Sparrow joins forces with Barbossa (Geoffrey Rush) to locate the Fountain Of Youth. The quest becomes infinitely more perilous when Jack is forced aboard the Queen Anne's Revenge captained by legendary pirate Blackbeard (Ian McShane). Look out for Keith Richards!

3 Attack The Block (15) Trainee nurse Sam (Jodie Whittaker) is mugged on her way home by wayward lads Moses (John Boyega), Pest (Alex Esmail) and Dennis (Franz Drameh). The assault is cut short by a meteor shower and when the youths investigate, they come face to snout with a creature from another world. A second downpour of meteors heralds more creatures and the lads grab their weapons...

4 The Way (12A) Tom (Martin Sheen) is an American optometrist whose round of golf with his country-club chums is ruined by news that his son Daniel (Emilio Estevez) has been killed in the Pyrenees. The medic flies to France and discovers that Daniel died on the El Camino de Santiago, an 800-kilometre spiritual pilgrimage. Tom grabs his son's backpack and decides to complete the pilgrimage.

5 Priest 3D (12A) War has raged for centuries between man and vampires, and humanity now resides in carefully-patrolled enclaves. Priest (Paul Bettany), a soldier of the Church trained in the art of killing vampires, lives in peace and obscurity until his beloved niece Lucy (Lily Collins) is abducted by a pack of vampires. Priest breaks his sacred vows and embarks on a crusade to rescue the girl. Plenty of action ensues.

NEW RELEASES

Diary Of A Wimpy Kid 2: Rodrick Rules U, 99 mins

BLOOD may be thicker than water, but it can be split just as easily and that's certainly true in Diary Of A Wimpy Kid 2: Rodrick Rules, which is based on Jeff Kinney's best-seller. David Bowers's sequel continues the trials of wise-cracking tyke Greg Heffley, who first exploded to life in a series of online cartoons. Exploiting his readers' nostalgia for school days and the innocence of childhood, Kinney sold more than one million copies of his first novel and has thus far sold 43 million copies of his five-book series, which unfolds through the eyes of a pre-teen narrator with delusions of greatness. Released in summer 2010, the film version of Diary Of A Wimpy Kid lost some of the wit and edginess of the books yet still struck a chord with audiences despite an unsympathetic and selfish lead character. Thankfully, Bowers's film presents us with a far more endearing hero. Sibling rivalry underpins the first hour before a contrived sequence that forces the brothers to fib for each other and ultimately lays the foundations for a lasting friendship. Honesty is never the best policy. Seventh-grader Greg Heffley (Zachary Gordon) thinks all of his problems are solved now he has moved up a year at Westmore Middle School.

Alas, insults in the corridor are nothing compared with the bullying he suffers at home from older brother Rodrick (Devon Bostick). "Having a brother is one of the most important relationships you will ever have in your life," declares the boys' mother Susan (Rachael Harris), who writes a parenting column for the local newspaper. To the despair of her husband Frank (Steve Zahn), Susan concocts a hare-brained scheme to force Greg and Rodrick to spend some quality time together. Meanwhile at school, Greg tries to catch the eye of pretty classmate Holly Hills (Peyton List) while embarking on misadventures with long-suffering pal Rowley (Robert Capron) and classmates Fregley (Grayson Russell) and Chirag Gupta (Karan Brar). But for family entertainment, this isn't at all bad. For starters, it has Steve Zahn and Rachael Harris as the firm-but-fair parents, even if the former isn't given quite enough to do and is pretty much underused. More importantly, it has the moon-faced, ginger-haired Robert Capron as Gordon's best friend, a kid so sweetly innocent that he will gaze at the new hot girl in school and say "She's almost as pretty as my mom" - a line that has proved extremely popular with audiences in the US.

The Hangover Part II*15, 101 mins

TODD Phillips's original movie was the highest-grossing comedy film of 2009, and this is a 101-minute alcohol-and-drug-fuelled bender that strands the same beleaguered characters in the same hellish nightmare and watches them squirm. The location has changed from Las Vegas to Thailand, but The Hangover Part II rests lazily on its moulderings laurels, engineering familiar scenarios to inflict the maximum distress on two-dimensional characters. The sequel curbs a few excesses - less plot, fewer laughs, less fun - and merrily chugs down a cocktail of racist, sexist and homophobic jibes that leave a nasty taste in the mouth. Phillips's film is crass and offensive and doesn't paint Thailand or its people in a particularly favourable light, trading on stereotypes for the sake of a snigger and it manages to offend just about anyone who is portrayed on screen - but that probably won't worry its audience. The Hangover Part II is a tasteless, preposterous and ultimately pointless tale of East meets West which careers from one improbable set-piece to the next, including the concealment of a dead body and a high-speed car chase. It's supposed to be harmless fun but it is actually really annoying.

The stylish Canterbury design from Maben Kitchens, starting from £6,000

Cook up a storm with some of the latest designs from Mobens Kitchens, made to order to suit the room's shape and your culinary desires

THE kitchen is a vital part of the home and as well as being the place for cooking and preparation of food it can also be a location where the family gets together to eat meals.

So a warm and welcoming ambience is vital so that meals can be enjoyed and the room becomes something more than just functional.

With the right sort of lighting and stylish appliances, it can also put thousands of pounds on to the value of a home.

Terry Watson, kitchen planning expert for Maben Kitchens, which has branches in Maidstone, Sevenoaks, Bromley and Tunbridge Wells, explains the possible layouts of kitchens, and which design could be best for you.

He said: "When thinking of investing in a new kitchen, it really is worth doing your research: choosing a kitchen is not purely down to the way it looks in your home, though that is obviously important, but how it works on a practical level, too.

"When you see a kitchen you like, you need to consider how the layout would suit your home.

■ The Cortona roomset from Maben Kitchens, starting at £6,000

"If, for example, you only have a small space you could consider a galley or straight-line design. But if you have an open-plan kitchen/diner, then why not really show it off with a stunning island layout?"

■ Galley kitchen: "These are super-efficient. Place your sink and stove on one side, and the fridge on the other – this way you'll have plenty of moveability when preparing food."

■ L-shaped kitchen: "The L-shaped kitchen can be a lot easier to work in than the galley kitchen, with appliances located centrally and plenty of counter space each side. Positioning some bar stools at one end of the L makes a great surface for family and friends to gather."

■ U-shaped kitchen: "This really does need a lot of space to be successful. This kitchen is fantastic for maximizing space and storage.

"If you start with a U-shaped kitchen, this can be changed to an L shape by removing the units and altering the position of the three main points of focus – the sink, the cooker and the fridge-freezer. In doing so, it is possible to construct a place for dining within the kitchen quite easily."

"A common problem to both the L-shaped and U-shaped kitchen is the corner. If not designed cleverly, the cabinets here can be inaccessible and the contents hard to reach. Luckily, kitchen specialists such as Maben are experts in this and have many design tricks, such as the Le Mans corner storage to counteract this."

■ Island: "The island kitchen is undoubtedly the most sociable and convenient of all layouts – with a space for everyone to gather and for the chef to entertain, without compromising on room for storage. The ease of cooking in this design is that you can have a sink or a stove installed in the island, leaving hordes of room for food preparation and getting everyone involved with the cooking."

"For a functional kitchen area within an open-plan scheme, you need to allow plenty of space to manoeuvre, so ideally you need to leave a minimum of 120cm between runs of units or between units and a central island."

"Maben's designers have been fully trained and have many years' experience, which is a huge benefit with such an important purchase. They talk to homeowners about how they use their kitchen and discuss any special requests, so that the best options can be considered. In addition, they will project-manage the entire job, helping people coordinate every aspect of the kitchen and providing reassurance that the various elements will work well together to achieve their desired look."

Maben is a leading kitchen specialist, offering project management of the complete process, from inspiration to installation. With the very latest looks, clever gadget ideas and stylish space solutions to choose from, Maben helps take the stress out of making over your kitchen and provides the design expertise to ensure you are cooking up a storm, the way you like, in next to no time.

The apple of your eye

Orchard Lea Tunbridge Wells

■ ENTRANCE HALL ■ THREE BEDROOMS, ONE WITH EN-SUITE ■ SITTING ROOM ■
CONSERVATORY ■ KITCHEN ■ UTILITY ROOM ■ LARGE GARDEN

TUNBRIDGE Wells is one of the most prestigious towns in the whole of the UK to call your home – and Orchard Lea is an exceptional property there that has just come on the market.

The house was built in 1935 and has since been extended several times to provide an exceptionally well-presented family home. There is the potential to extend further, subject to the usual planning consents. An inspection of the house and garden is recommended to fully appreciate the appeal of the property.

The accommodation comprises a porch with double doors with glazed panels, outside light with PIR sensor and quarry-tiled floor.

An oak inner door with leaded-light centre panel leads into the entrance hall, which has a side window and stairs leading to a galleried first-floor landing with two understairs cupboards.

The sitting room is an L-shaped room with windows to the front and rear, with further sliding patio doors to a conservatory. Features include a stone fireplace with gas coal-effect fire.

The conservatory is in a Victorian style with polycarbonate triple-glazed roof and ceramic tiled floor.

Appliances include a Franke stainless steel double-bowl sink unit with mixer tap and Bosch fan-assisted double oven.

The galleried first-floor landing has access to loft space and there are three well-appointed bedrooms, one with en-suite. There is also a family bathroom.

An impressive gravel driveway with brick pillar entrance posts and parking for two or three cars leads to an attached single garage with up-and-over door, internal light and power and personal door to the rear garden.

The front garden has been attractively landscaped with a low-level brick wall and border hedging. There are well-stocked shrub and herbaceous beds with specimen planting. A wrought-iron gate leads to the side and rear garden.

The beautiful landscaped rear garden, which is more than 100ft long, has many specimen plants and trees and is designed in several sections. There is an ornamental fish pond, paved patio area, feature lights and a summerhouse with a tiled roof.

A stone path meanders through and around the garden, with several seating areas along the way. At the far end of the garden, reached through a pergola, is a vegetable plot with shed and greenhouse.

The garden is enclosed by laurel, holly and beech hedging, with gated access to the playing fields at the rear. There is additional outside security lighting and a water butt.

Orchard Lea is in a highly-sought-after private cul-de-sac on the Tunbridge Wells/Southborough border, within easy walking distance of High Brooms railway station, which offers services to London and the south coast via Tonbridge.

The area is well served by good schools for children of all ages, with a number of highly-regarded grammar schools in close proximity. Access to the A21/M25 is within a few minutes' drive, and the larger towns of Tunbridge Wells and Tonbridge are about two miles away, both offering a range of shopping, recreational and leisure facilities.

Viewing is strictly by prior appointment with Wood & Pilcher on 01892 511311; email southborough@woodandpilcher.co.uk, or visit 124 London Road, Southborough, Tunbridge Wells TN1 1UT.

SPLENDOUR: Traders are looking to breathe new life into The Pantiles, set in the heart of the town

Stamp-duty increase slows high-end sales

THE property market in Royal Tunbridge Wells has been affected by the Government's recent rise in stamp duty. Since April any home sold for more than £1 million has attracted a 5 per cent fee on top – up from the previous level of 4 per cent for any property sold for more than £500,000.

This stamp-duty hike becomes more painful as the property price rises, with a £2.5 million home requiring £125,000 in duty, up from £100,000 under the previous rate.

Batcheller Thacker partner Matthew Braxton said there had been a rise in stamp duty that had affected the higher end of the property market.

"There is still money around, but people are not as willing to just buy whatever is on offer and move on in a few years' time because they'll have to pay out on stamp duty each time," he said.

"Instead, more and more people are waiting for the right property to come on the market – they're being more selective. There is also a general lack of confidence in the market and banks won't lend. Things are much harder this year than they were in 2010."

Mr Braxton said there were certain recession-proof areas of the town where demand remained strong and prices continued to rise.

"Any large house near the parks such as Camden, Dunorlan and Sherwood are popular. Detached properties in these locations always sell well. The 'village' area of Tunbridge Wells, particularly near Claremont School, is also always in demand."

The rental market remains strong, with one-bed flats starting at the £650-£675pcm figure and reaching £2,000pcm for the more charming lodges in rustic idylls.

Property prices look set to rise further if and when proposed road improvements are carried out.

Access in and out of the town is often strained at peak times, but plans to alleviate this long-standing issue have been shelved as part of the Government's cutbacks.

PROPERTY SPOTLIGHT ON TUNBRIDGE WELLS

What makes it special

PERHAPS it is its royal prefix, perhaps the blend of culture, history, retail and architecture, but Royal Tunbridge Wells has chiselled itself a unique status in the South East. Perched on the Kent-East Sussex border, it is a self-contained conurbation, built on a rich history which unites royalty with remarkable building designs, much from famed architect Decimus Burton, to create a fascinating blend of old and new.

From the splendour of the Georgian colonnade of The Pantiles – boasting the spring from which the town derived its name and its royal blessing – to the modern buzz of the shopping complex, it has an almost cosmopolitan feel. Yet it is surrounded by countryside, the rolling hills of The Weald and its picturesque villages proving a honeypot to visitors. With a reputation for wealth – it has one of the highest concentrations of public schools in the country – the town has become popular with City workers. Royal Tunbridge Wells has a little bit of everything, and a population fiercely proud and protective of what it has, what it had, and what it wants.

Room to improve

THE town centre is having a review of some key buildings – among them the proud civic complex. It seems likely there will be development over the coming years in a bid to boost its status as the retail hub for the region. It remains a topic of debate – as does the old town-centre cinema site, which has lain derelict for more than a decade.

Linked to this is the constant thorn in its side of roads and congestion. Peak times can see roads snarl up, to the frustration of residents and workers alike. Hopes of dualling one of the town's main arteries – the A21 linking it to Tonbridge, Sevenoaks and the East Sussex coast – have been delayed due to Government cuts.

Shops

THE town centre is a diverse beast. At the top of the town sits Royal Victoria Place – run by Westfield – boasting all the key high-street stores. It is perennially popular and offers an ideal one-stop shop. But what makes Tunbridge Wells a little different is that outside the centre is a range of independent traders, stretching down the hill and towards the splendour of The Pantiles, which is looking to re-establish itself as a key retail venue. A recent food festival there attracted some 17,000 visitors, while regular farmers' markets take place both on The Pantiles and outside the civic complex. In addition, North Farm boasts a range of out-of-town stores.

Schools

TUNBRIDGE Wells, it could be said, is something of a victim of its own success. By virtue of sitting within Kent's borders, it has a number of sought-after grammar schools. But so close to East Sussex, demand always outweighs supply, with the likes of Skinners operating a 'super-selective' policy, creaming off only the highest scorers sitting the Kent Test. Unsurprisingly, the grammars score highly in league tables. There is also a vast range of public-education opportunities, reflecting the area's wealth. In addition, local comprehensives are trying to pick up their game, with a recently-formed academy given the green light for a multi-million-pound redevelopment.

Connections

THE A21 takes motorists from Tunbridge Wells up through Tonbridge and Sevenoaks to the M25 and with it quick access to London and the rest of the motorway network. To the south, it leads to Hastings and the coast. Brighton is less than 50 minutes away. A short drive to the M20 takes you to the Channel ports and Eurotunnel terminal. Alternatively, drive to Ashford or Ebbsfleet to pick up the Eurostar to Paris and a range of European destinations. Gatwick is under an hour's drive, too. Trains will also have you in London in less than 60 minutes.

What's on

THE Assembly Hall theatre in the town centre offers a steady diet of drama, comedy, music and, of course, an annual pantomime. It is complemented, just yards away, by the Trinity Arts Centre – once a church designed by Decimus Burton, it is now a hub of culture. Back over the road is an art gallery and museum, with several other art venues fast developing a reputation. A large out-of-town multiplex cinema offers the latest films.

i20 makes big impression

By Sam Davison

editorial@archant.co.uk

IS THERE still room in the motoring market for conventional three-door small cars?

I'm not talking about Minis or Fiat 500s or racy three-door spin-offs such as the Seat Ibiza SportCoupé, catering for the style conscious.

No, my target is the typical small hatch that looks much the same in three or five-door format, except that deleting two rear doors saves £350 to £750, but adds more inconvenience.

Some carmakers clearly don't rate them: Skoda shuns offering a three-door Fabia; Honda doesn't bother in the case of the rival Jazz; and you can't have a three-door Fiat Panda or Kia Picanto.

Ambitious Korean brand Hyundai does not offer a three-door version of its i10 city car either but, perversely, sells a three-door Hyundai i20 (from £9,745) that is a shadow of its five-door self.

Despite a high-sill rakish rear window, the car cannot escape the shadow of its more practical sister and the front seat fold/slide mechanism allowing access to the rear is clumsy and irritating to use and needs resetting each time.

Would-be buyers with babies or small children to strap in are better off paying around £450 for extra doors.

Once in the back though space is generous, if claustrophobic due to those windows, but then you struggle to get out.

However, the i20 range overall is impressive, underlining Hyundai's efforts to be taken more seriously; it is now the world's fifth biggest carmaker and the new generation 'i' series has proved a winner while the brand's traditional strengths of keen prices and universal five-year warranty reassure UK consumers as they check finances more closely.

The i20 was launched in 2009, after being

HYUNDAI i20 1.4CRDi COMFORT 3-dr: PRICE £11,745 FACT FILE

BARGAIN:

But the three-door Hyundai i20 is still living in the shadow of its five-door sister, which only costs an extra £450 designed in and for Europe (in Germany), but is built in India to keep costs down.

Longer and wider than its big-selling predecessor, the Getz – a real game-changer for the Korean brand on the UK market – it has a distinctive style to it, feels roomier and better arranged, while boot space bears comparison with some cars from the class above.

And it is packed with value: every i20 comes with a full complement of airbags, air con and glove box cooler, electric front windows plus fully adjustable wheel and driver's seat.

The chassis set-up is also a crowd pleaser, striking a good balance between comfort and sporty, though falling short of the driver feedback of sophisticated rivals like the latest Ford Fiesta and VW Polo.

And the interior is robust with nice touches such as chrome door handles, but even lively upholstery in our mid-range Comfort trim test car (from £10,595) failed to lift the slightly dour atmosphere, though you do get a full USB link

Tourer enters Zafira line-up

VAUXHALL has confirmed the silky Zafira Tourer concept, previewed at this year's Geneva Motor Show, will become a production reality – the first cars will be in UK showrooms by early 2012.

The newcomer will sit above the current Zafira model and aims to raise the bar for design, luxury, flexibility and innovation in the MPV sector.

Rewarding the Saab loyalists

SAAB is offering membership to the Saab Service Club, a loyalty scheme offering checks and discounts on parts, servicing and accessories.

Owners of Saab's three years or older qualify for free membership and, until September 1, participating dealerships are offering a complimentary MOT test. More at: <http://www.saabserviceclub.co.uk>

GT Edition an exclusive buy

NISSAN is celebrating global success in GT racing and 40 years of sporty 'Z' models in the UK, by launching a special 'GT Edition'.

Offering three exclusive body colours, unique GT stripes, darkened 19-inch alloys, upgraded equipment and significant suspension tweaks, the GT edition is available now, priced from £35,000.

Road trip highlights Volvo's all-round DRIVe

1ST DRIVE

BY MATT JOY editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

IF YOU'VE managed to get this far in your motoring life without sparing a thought for fuel bills or the environment, then I'm secretly impressed, because there's nothing like the tide of public opinion to raise something to the top of the agenda.

It wasn't that long ago that hardly anyone knew about carbon dioxide emissions, but these days it's more socially acceptable to banter about g/km than bhp.

Volvo isn't ashamed to admit it has been in the business of making family cars for decades now: it knows what works and what doesn't. Its long-deserved reputation for safety is still an ever-present, too, yet perhaps of greater interest now is an emphasis on creating cars that are good to look at and very economical too. An impossible combination maybe?

There's a new V60 DRIVe that represents a serious attempt to fill all of those roles.

You should be familiar with the regular V60 by now: a slick, modern Volvo right down to its core and yet still able to do all the boring stuff like they always have.

Try 62.8mpg and 119g/km for the V60, a fraction better for the S60 saloon.

What's more, rather than the pie-in-the-sky figures that many seem to think the official statistics are, a little application makes them achievable. To prove it, Volvo set us the task of driving a new V60 DRIVe from their UK headquarters in Marlow to Mayrhoffen in Austria on a single tank of fuel.

My geography is poor at the best of times, but I know that 840 miles without refuelling is no mean feat. Even starting with the M25 couldn't diminish the V60's qualities.

Despite not even being run in yet (and anyone will tell you that diesels in particular don't really get going until they have over 1,000 miles on them) the 1.6-litre diesel unit gives the kind of low-speed pull that we've come to expect, thanks to the 199lb.ft of torque available from just 1,750rpm. There's also a six-speed manual gearbox, rather than the five speeds many eco-specials are lumbered with.

The cabin does a fine job of looking after its occupants too, with seats that are very supportive and comfortable, plus there's a healthy complement of equipment too as

FACT FILE:

- Volvo V60 DRIVe SE, £26,770
- Engine: 1.6-litre diesel unit producing 113bhp and 119lb.ft of torque
- Transmission: Six-speed manual gearbox driving the front wheels
- Performance: Top speed 118mph, 0-62mph in 11.3seconds
- Economy: 62.8mpg
- Emissions: 119g/km of CO<sub>2</sub>

this is no stripped-out economy model.

Better still, if you go for the R-Design model innocent passers-by would mistake it for the hot model in the range. R-Design gets you very attractive and large alloy wheels, a tasteful bodykit for sportiness but not showiness and sharper suspension.

Remarkably, at the end of the challenge the V60 indicated zero fuel in the tank and zero range with 15 miles still go, but managed to complete the task without a cough or sputter. 830 miles down, and with 56.4mpg on the trip computer.

The V60 DRIVe demands very little in the way of compromise from its occupants, yet delivers pretty impressive fuel efficiency with a little in reserve – which proves that you don't have to sell you soul to save the planet.

Organised by

ARCHANT} KOS MEDIA

Dover Exhibition Centre, Kent, Wednesday October 26th 2011

New venue, new dates, new opportunities...

Not just a meet and greet event like so many others, Business Week Live is designed to provide real commercial opportunities at a time of year when business professionals need to fill their diaries and order books for the coming year. 150 exhibitors and over 1000 business decision makers and influencers are expected to attend the exhibition and conference at its new home in Dover.

Companies looking to generate leads, meet buyers face to face and form new relationships and partnerships, locally, nationally and internationally need to be at Business Week Live. Stands start at just £440, a small investment for a real commercial opportunity and business goes where business is invited. We are inviting you to join us at Business Week Live 2011.
